West Ministers to Hold Parley on Berlin Soon; No Red Demobilization

Situation in Brazil Worse; Joao Goulart Heads Home

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil's presidential crisis deepened Wednesday as the nation's three military chiefs rejected a Congressional plan to make leftist Vice President Joa Goulart a figurehead President.

Although the heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force were united in their opposition to Goulart, at least one of the Army commanders under them was reported defiantly supporting Goulart.

The leader of the anti-Goulart movement, War (army) Minister Odylio Denys, flew to Rio from his Brasilia headquarters Tuesday night following reports that the 3rd Army commander in southern Brazil had pledged support to the Vice President. Marshal Denys went into immediate conference with top armed forces leaders to rally military opposition to Goulart.

Word of the Army split was relayed to the Chamber of Deputies by one of Goulart's chief supporters in Congress, Labor Party Deputy Doutel de Andrade. He said an emissary from the 3rd Army commander, Gen. Jose Machado Lopes, told Denys Machado Lopes would not take orders from the War Minister, but "only from President Joao Goulart."

Acting President Rainieri Mazzilli early Wednesday issued a decree sacking Machado Lopes and two other 3rd Army officers, the commanders of an infantry division and of a cavalry division. Gen. Osvaldo Cordeiro de Faria was named to succeed Machado Lopes, but in view of the latter's earlier defiance of Denys it was questionable whether he and his associates would abide by the dismissal decree.

Goulart, en route home from a visit to Communist China when President Janio Quadros resigned last week, has been waiting in Paris to see what Congress would do and how the situation would develop.

Goulart left Paris Wednesday for New York en route for Brazil.

He was accompanied by Brazilian Senator Barros di Carvalho and a secretary, Dirceu di Pasca.

Goulart and his party were flying Pan American.

Pan American said Goulart has booked a flight to Buenos Aires from Idlewild Airport in New York. The airline spokesman said Goulart has a reservation under Di Pasca's name on Panagra Airlines flight 81 from Idlewild to Argentina.

De Andrade told the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday night that Goulart would fly to Montevideo, Uruguay, then go to the south Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul, his home stronghold where the 3rd Army is based. The governor of the state, Leonel Brizzola, has already pledged support to Goulart, who is his brother-in-law.

Denys was pledged full sup-

Ship Hits Reef; 49 Feared Dead

DJAKARTA (UPI)—The Indonesian Navy Wednesday reported that an unidentified passenger vessel struck a reef near the Celebes Islands in East Indonesia last weekend. The belated reports said 49 of the 92 passengers and crew members were missing and feared dead.

The navy said 43 survivors were picked up by rescue ships. It did not make it clear whether the unidentified vessel had sunk or was still afloat.

A massive sea search was launched Monday for the survivors.

The vessel was reported to have struck the submerged reef en route to Balikpapan from Buton, a central Celebes port town.

Kim Yu Taik Arrives For High-Level Talks

By The Associated Press

The chief of South Korea's Economic Planning Agency, Kim Yu Taik, arrived here yesterday for meetings with Japanese leaders to pave the way for the resumption of normalization talks disrupted since the military coup last May.

Kim, No. 2 man of South Korea's military cabinet and one time Ambassador to Japan, will stay a week or longer, on the invitation of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's Council on Japan-South Korea Relations. The council is an informal grouping of parliamentarians headed by Mitsujiro Ishii.

Kim Yu Taik

Kim, at an airport press conference, emphasized his visit was an informal one aimed at "Exchanging views with Japanese political and business leaders."

"I brought no specific plans but came to exchange views in the hope that this will contribute toward the normalization talks between South Korea and Japan," he said.

Tokyo officials welcomed Kim's arrival as indicative of a strong desire on the part of the Seoul government to bring to a conclusion negotiations that have dragged on and off now for 10 years.

The new round of negotiations, scheduled to open around Sept. 20 in Tokyo, will be the sixth full dress talks since 1951.

Kim declined to be drawn out on details of what he plans to discuss in Japan but admitted that "the Rhee Line fishing boundary and South Korean property claims were top-most issues."

Lt. Gen. Park Chung Hee, top man in the South Korean military Government, was quoted as saying in Seoul this week, that he favors a package deal instead of an issue-by-issue settlement with Japan.

Kim emphasized, as have other Korean leaders, the settlement of pending problems and establishment of diplomatic relations must come before the question of Japan-South Korean economic cooperation is taken up.

Kim evaded questions on the exact date of the forthcoming talks but said South Korea's chief delegate to the talks had not been named.

Today Kim begins his round of conferences with top political and business leaders.

Kim is staying at the Imperial Hotel.

Rhee Line Plan

SEOUL (AP)—Kim Yu Taik, chairman of South Korea's Economic Planning Board, is taking to Tokyo a Korean draft for a fishery agreement with Japan, a Marine Affairs official said Wednesday.

Commodore Lee Kak Soon, director of the Office of Marine Affairs, told newsmen the draft made these three proposals:

1. The interests of Korean fishermen should not be seriously affected by any agreement.

2. Japan should recognize the Rhee Line, an artificial territorial boundary in the Japan Sea set up by South Korea seven years ago.

3. Fishing corporations jointly financed by Japan and the Korean Governments should be established.

Lee declined to disclose other details of the comprehensive draft.

Fiscal '61 Extra Budget Announced

Chief Cabinet Secretary Masayoshi Ohira told the press yesterday that a supplementary budget for fiscal 1961 would exceed the ¥80,000 million mark.

According to Finance Ministry sources, major items in the supplementary budget will consist of funds for the Food Control Special Account, amounting to more than ¥30,000 million, natural disaster relief and rehabilitation funds totaling some ¥20,000 million, and funds for a 7.1 per cent pay increase for Government service personnel amounting to some ¥17,700 million.

West Accuses Russians of Disinterest In N-Ban Pact

GENEVA (UPI)—The Soviet Union Wednesday declared, in effect, it is no longer interested in a nuclear test ban agreement independent of general disarmament, according to Western negotiators.

Both U.S. Ambassador Arthur H. Dean and British negotiator David Ormsby-Gore said the Soviet Union has brushed aside all the latest Western proposals and insisted a test ban agreement can only be settled within the framework of general disarmament.

Dean presented two further Western proposals to the 338th session of the deadjocked nuclear conference. One of them was meant to make unnecessary the Soviet demand for a three-man "troika" administrative council to supervise control operations.

During the one-hour, 45-minute session, Ormsby-Gore pressed Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin, on whether the Soviet Government had lost interest in the idea of an agreement to ban nuclear weapon tests under strict international control as a first step toward disarmament.

Ormsby-Gore told a news conference after the meeting that Tsarapkin did not answer the question directly. But the implication was clearer than ever before that the Soviet Union was regarding its initial call for an independent nuclear test ban treaty as dead, observers said.

JFK Aid Plan Adopted With Restrictions

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House-Senate conferees Tuesday night agreed on a compromise form of foreign aid loan financing that gave President John F. Kennedy the five-year authority he asked but denied him the right to finance it by Treasury borrowing.

The action came as the weary conferees agreed on all major points in a compromise $4,253,500,000 Foreign Aid Bill for the coming year.

They put off a final vote until Wednesday, however, when final details on minor points can be cleared up. A final mop-up session was scheduled for 2 p.m. EDT Wednesday.

The final compromise on long-term loan financing was regarded by many observers as a victory for opponents of Kennedy's original proposal for Treasury borrowing financing. But Administration sources made it known that it was acceptable to the President.

Under the compromise, the bill provides a $7,200 million authorization for development loans over a five-year period. But the actual money would be subject to congressional appropriations.

However, in the face-saving part of the compromise, the bill would spell out authority for the President, "whenever (he) determines that it is important to the advancement of United States interests and necessary to further the purposes" of the loan program, to enter into agreements committing funds in advance "subject only to the annual appropriations of such funds."

This means that the President could go ahead with long-term commitments and gamble on Congress honoring them in forthcoming years by providing the actual money.

Pirated Cuban Ship Freed by U.S. Court

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The pirated freighter Bahia de Nipe is free to sail back to Cuba, protected by the doctrine of sovereign immunity, U.S. Federal Judge Walter E. Hoffman decided Tuesday.

In a 25-page memorandum signed Tuesday night, Hoffman gave "judicial support" to the decision of the U.S. State Department to return the 3,800-ton vessel despite a number of lawsuits seeking to attach the freighter to pay for claims against Cuba.

Hoffman directed that an order be entered in accordance with his memorandum but stayed its execution until expected appeals from his decision can be heard by the U.S. 4th circuit court of appeals Sept. 5.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk stated on Aug. 20 that "the prompt release of the vessel is necessary to secure the observance of the rights and obligations of the United States."

Gov't Heads Mull Japan's U.N. Policy

Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda, Foreign Minister Zentaro Kosaka and other Foreign Office leaders yesterday discussed the stand to be taken by Japan at the forthcoming 16th United Nations General Assembly, particularly with regard to the seating of Communist China in the world organization.

They failed to arrive at any conclusion on the Red Chinese membership problem because of inadequate information on the attitude of Western nations toward the issue. But they agreed to continue discussions on the matter.

According to well informed sources, Foreign Office representatives explained at yesterday's conference the U.S. proposal to treat the matter as an "important question," on which decisions of the General Assembly "shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting," as provided by Article 18 of the U.N. Charter.

The U.S. is said to be sounding out Japan's opinion unofficially concerning this proposal.

8 Killed, 62 Hurt In Train Crash

PARIS (UPI)—A fully loaded express train carrying holidaymakers from Britanny back to Paris crashed at Thiel, near Nogent le Trotrou Tuesday after hitting a diesel locomotive.

Officials late Tuesday night said the death toll had reached eight, with 32 persons gravely injured and about 30 persons lightly injured.

Russia Orders Halt in Discharging Till Peace Pact Signed

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced Tuesday night that some Russian servicemen due to be discharged this year will be kept in uniform "until the conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany."

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the "temporary deferment" was ordered by the Communist Party Central Committee and the Council of Ministers.

Tass said the halt in the planned demobilization would affect "the necessary number of soldiers, sailors, sergeants, sergeant-majors and petty officers, whose term of service expires in 1961."

There was no immediate indication of the number of soldiers affected, or whether the order would hit all Soviet servicemen.

Tass said Western steps toward war forced the move.

"NATO member states are aggravating the international situation in every way, addressing direct threats against the USSR and other socialist (Communist) countries, stepping up the arms race and fanning a war psychosis," Tass said.

The announcement of the order was coupled with a promise that "the Soviet Union has no issues with regard to other states which we would like to settle by force of arms."

Earlier this summer, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said planned cuts in Soviet armed strength would be halted and the nation's military spending would be boosted by 33 per cent. It was believed Tuesday night's announcement went beyond those plans to actually increase the number of Soviet men under arms.

Earlier this month the American Government announced that the discharges of several thousand servicemen may be held up and said it would begin the call-up of reservists.

2 Swimmers Killed in Try to Flee E. Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—Communist police Wednesday shot at—but missed—a refugee swimming the Teltow Canal in a desperate bid to escape to the West.

In the past week the Communist guards have killed two men attempting to swim to the haven of the Western bank, of what Berliners now call the "Death Canal."

West Berlin police said they heard bullets whipping across the 60-yard wide canal. Five minutes later a dripping man clambered up the West bank, unhurt. The border between the West sector and East Berlin runs through the center of the canal.

During the night Communist police on the border used tear gas grenades and water cannon against West Berliners, West Berlin police reported.

Just before midnight the Communists turned water cannons and tear gas on a crowd of about 60 people gathered at the border at Alexandrinen Strasse, in Kreuzberg, in the American Sector. Shortly after midnight the Communists did it again when a group of Western youths started catcalling.

About 5 a.m. a Communist water cannon at Treptower Strasse, in Neukoelln also in the U.S. sector, suddenly let fly at a police patrol car on the Western side. West Berlin police said they saw no reason why the Communists should have squirted the powerful water jet at them.

Heinrich Luebke, president, West German Federal Republic, was in town Wednesday for a personal look at the situation. He arrived unexpectedly Tuesday night after breaking off his vacation.

West Germans Will Not Turn Neutralists: Bonn

BONN (AP)—The West German Government denied Wednesday that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer warned President Kennedy of a possible swing to neutralism among West Germans because of the Berlin crisis.

The warning was reported by the Columbia Broadcasting System to have been made in a letter from Adenauer to Kennedy taken to Washington by West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe.

An official Foreign Ministry spokesman said nothing of the sort was contained in the letter. He would not disclose its contents, in line with a previous announcement that they would be kept secret.

CBS' Bonn correspondent, Daniel Schorr, reported that Adenauer based his warning on the possibility that the West German public might become disillusioned with the handling of the Berlin problem by the Western powers and turn this country's longstanding alliance with them.

Schorr said he got his information from sources close to the Chancellor.

"The key to the present situation is the morale of the West Berlin population," CBS reported Adenauer as telling Kennedy in the letter. They have so far sustained well the shock of the sealoff of Berlin."

Adenauer tries to impress on Kennedy "the need for the utmost Western firmness, both in defending Berlin against further 'Communist nibbling' and avoiding concessions at the conference table that would have the same effect."

Envoy to See JFK

WASHINGTON (AP)—West German Ambassador Wilhelm G. Grewe will see President John F. Kennedy Wednesday to deliver a letter to Kennedy from West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, the White House said Tuesday night.

Grewe will be accompanied by U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Foy D. Kohler. The West German envoy will see the President at noon EDT.

The West German Ambassador arrived in Washington by plane at 6:45 p.m. on a flight from New York where he stopped briefly after his trip from Germany.

U.S. Soldier Arrested by East Germans

COBURG, Germany (UPI)—A U.S. soldier was arrested by Communist police Tuesday when he accidentally entered East Germany while on border patrol.

U.S. military authorities will seek the release of Specialist 4. C. Bobby Scot, the Army said. The U.S. Army maintains a liaison mission with the Soviet headquarters in East Germany.

Army sources gave this account of the incident:

Scott's patrol, assisted by West German border police, was inspecting the progress of the installation of a new border barrier by the Communists. They are erecting a double barbed wire fence, fortified by concrete posts, in the Coburg area.

Scott's jeep was parked near the border. He stepped out of it to look for the other members of the patrol and unintentionally walked a few yards into Communist territory.

Two armed East German patrolmen hiding in the bushes seized him and took him away, despite the protests of other members of the Western patrol.

Prince Philip Will Visit S. America

LONDON (UPI)—Prince Philip will visit South America early in 1962, Buckingham Palace announced Tuesday.

U.S., Allies Agree on D.C. Talks in Next Few Weeks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States and its allies have reached tentative agreement to hold a Western foreign ministers meeting on Berlin, probably in Washington in the next few weeks.

The agreement was disclosed by a State Department spokesman. He said the date and place have not yet been fixed, however.

The spokesman, Department Press Officer Lincoln White, said the meeting was "in the works."

It would be held prior to Berlin talks with Russia. These are expected to take place in New York just before or about the time of the Sept. 19 opening of the next United Nations General Assembly session.

The Washington meeting would work out the negotiating approach the allies would take with Russia.

President John F. Kennedy conferred with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other key advisers for more than an hour Tuesday on Berlin and possibly other international matters.

To avoid reporters afterward, Rusk had his limousine driven to a rear White House exit from which newsmen are barred.

Others at the White House during the meeting were Central Intelligence Agency chief Allen W. Dulles; Edward R. Murrow, head of the U.S. Information Agency, and roving Ambassador Averell Harriman. They presumably joined in the talks.

After the meeting of the allies, Rusk alone or all three of the Western Big Three foreign ministers may meet informally with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in New York.

Young Man Goes West—Via Window

BERLIN (UPI)—A young student raced through the second story apartment of a surprised East Berlin family Tuesday and leaped from the window into the West sector.

Eyewitnesses who watched in amazement as the student hurled himself out of the window said he was unhurt.

The woman stuck her head out of the window and related the incident to West Berliners shortly after the student jumped.

The escape took place on Luckauer Strasse where East sector houses face onto the West sector.

The East Berlin housewife said the student knocked on the door and asked if a family named Fruehling lived there. When she said no, he pushed her aside, raced through the apartment and leaped out of the window.

Girl, 13, to Undergo Same Heart Surgery as Eisuke

Only three days after Eisuke Ichinari died, 13-year-old Keiko Hatano will undergo the same heart operation by the same doctor in the same hospital tomorrow.

Prior to the operation, blood will be drawn from donors, including 16 U.S. Forces personnel, for use during the operation on the Niigata teen-ager.

Dr. Shigeru Sakakibara, Japan's foremost heart surgeon, who operated on the 4-year-old boy Monday night, will perform the same operation on Keiko tomorrow. The doctor said he had operated on some 540 patients with the same ailment with about 90 per cent success.

Meanwhile, funeral services for Eisuke will be held today at his parents' home in Horinouchi, Suginami Ward, Tokyo. The boy, whose operation drew nationwide attention because of a large-scale hunt for rare AB Rh negative blood, died at 4:50 p.m. Tuesday at the Tokyo Women's Medical College Hospital after his heart stopped beating for the third time.

Twice doctors revived his heart early Tuesday morning by massaging it, but the third time their efforts proved in vain. The boy had to undergo the operation to enable doctors to sew up a hole in the dividing wall between the right and left chambers of his heart.

Doctors at the hospital said the boy died because his heart ailment had advanced too seriously.

ICC Delays Vote On Inspection Body

GENEVA (AP)—The 14-nation Laos conference postponed a final decision Wednesday on the authority to grant the International Control Commission (ICC) power to check on foreign military infiltration of the jungle kingdom.

The conference agreed to refer to its drafting committee a set of Soviet-proposed principles to define ICC competence in assuring that no foreign troops and military personnel be introduced into a neutral and united Laos.

The Soviet formula replaces an earlier Russian proposal that the Canadian-Indian-Polish control commission may act only after joint instructions by the Conference co-Chairmen, Britain and the Soviet Union. Russia's Georgi Pushkin withdrew this proposal Tuesday after determined Western refusal to accept any formula which would grant Moscow the right of veto over ICC operations in Laos.

81 Saved From Ropeway Cars; Judge Seizes Jet

CHAMONIX, France (UPI)—An all-night rescue operation ended shortly after dawn Wednesday when the last of 81 persons trapped for 18 hours in the air was brought safely to the ground.

The 81 had been stranded in cable-cars danging above the Vallee Blanche since noon Tuesday, when a French Air Force Thunderstreak jet fighter plane slashed through the main cable of the cable-lift. Three cars dropped 500 feet to the snow below, killing six persons.

The plane that clipped the tow-cable flew back to a base near Luxeuil in eastern France, where a judge ordered it seized and held pending an investigation of the accident.

The cable lift runs from the Aiguille du Midi across the Vallee Blanche and the Glacier du Geant to Helbronner.

The little cable-cars, each big enough for only four persons, dangle from it. The cable is supported at only two points between the Aiguille and Helbronner—an outcropping of rock called the Gros Rognon and another, near Helbronner, the Col du Flambeau. The cable was cut between the outcrops.

Mountain rescue teams worked all afternoon, all evening and through the night to save the stranded 81.

The brilliant, nearly full moon shone through the clear mountain air. A searchlight was brought up and turned on, but it was used mainly to serve as beacon of hope for the trapped tourists, shivering in their light summer clothing at near-freezing temperatures.

Where possible, the hardy mountain guides put lines on the cars to haul them along to the nearest point where their occupants could step out. One young guide went hand over hand along a section of the cable—hundreds of feet above the snowfield below—to reach a stranded cable-car.

One Indian woman, clad in a sari, shawl and sandals, slid down a rope into the snow and when asked what the experience of being trapped was like, replied: "It was hell."

A plan to pluck the stranded tourists from their predicament by helcopter was abandoned because the big whirlybirds had trouble hovering in the

Local Columnists Applaud Ikeda's Letter to K'chev

Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda's reply to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's message made public Monday was hailed by three columnists in their newspapers. Their consensus is that the reply is commendable in that it refuted the unfounded Soviet charges firmly and positively.

A Sankei Shimbun columnist termed the Ikeda message a "commendable rebuttal of the biased Soviet charges leveled against Japan plus a just demand for return of Japan's 'integral' territorial waters."

He said the Russian charges that the United States-Japan Security Treaty is an aggressive military pact is entirely false because the treaty is neither a military pact nor aimed at aggression.

"Frankly speaking," he went on, "Japan is vitally afraid of communism, for the Japanese people know that some military force is needed to stop the planned Communist world revolution."

He then said the Russians know this but that they persist in leveling accusations against the Japanese, "trying hard to start a revolution in Japan."

In the light of this and the fact that the Japanese people are afraid of this Communist aim, the columnist held that Ikeda should have clarified in his message the fact that the security treaty was necessary because Japan's political system is entirely different from the Soviets—or more accurately, incompatible with the Communist system.

If Ikeda had mentioned this to the Russian premier, he believed the Japanese Prime Minister then could claim that he had told the Russians everything.

A Mainichi Shimbun columnist favorably noted the "quiet but firm" tone marking the Ike-

Tshombe Says U.N. Troops Arrested, Manhandled Him

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga, The Congo (UPI)—Katanga President Moise Tshombe charged Tuesday that U.N. soldiers "arrested and manhandled" him five times Monday while disarming his European army officers.

Tshombe attacked the U.N. operation in a press conference, but said fears the army would mutiny without its European officers were "absolute nonsense."

"I can guarantee there will be no mutiny," he said.

U.N. officials flatly denied that any soldiers arrested or manhandled Tshombe, but said it was possible the President's car was stopped at U.N. roadblocks thrown up in Katanga Monday.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The United Nations rushed 350 Ethiopian reinforcements to Stanleyville Wednesday as tension between the U.S. and Congolese troops mounted in the Lumumbist stronghold. The U.N. announced that Ingram England, its chief officer in Stanleyville, was threatened with arrest over the weekend while having talks with the Lumumbist leader Antoine Gizenga.

Tshombe repeated his refusal to go to Leopoldville for talks with central Congolese officials "while Katanga is under U.N. military pressure." Leopoldville Premier Cyrille Adoula has given Tshombe a virtual ultimatum to attend a Congolese leaders' meeting there.

Fear grew here Tuesday that Katangese policemen may get out of hand due to resentment that they are European controlled while the army is now wholly Katangese.

U.N. civilian chief Conor Cruise O'Brien accused the former Belgian colonial government of "seeking to prove the unfitness for command of the Katangese rather than preparing them for promotion."

The U.N. chief said the 11,000-man army "represents a real danger to peace."

Arrests Protested

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United Nations confirmed Tuesday that it received a protest from Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak against the arrest of Belgians serving in the Katanga armed forces in the Congo.

A U.N. spokesman declined, however, to comment on the protest, other than to say it had been received by telegram.

half the blood for the little boy Monday. Sixteen U.S. Forces personnel are supplying also more than half the blood needed for Friday's operation on the 13-year-old girl.

During a presentation ceremony at JRC headquarters at Shiba, Tokyo, Henry regretted the boy's death but hoped that it would serve as a "rallying point" in a blood donation movement in Japan. He emphasized the need for constant supply of blood for thousands of cases that need blood transfusion every day throughout Japan.

The letter was presented by Noboru Imajo, director of the Foreign Affairs Division of the Metropolitan Government who represented the Governor.

Asian Lawyers Slate Tokyo Meet

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Lawyers from 19 Asian countries will meet in a Berlin-crisis sense of urgency at Tokyo next month to consider ways of promoting world peace through international law, sponsors of the regional meetings said Tuesday.

The meeting, Sept. 17-20, will be the second of a series of four regional conferences leading up to a "world conference on peace through law" in 1962. An American hemisphere meeting was held last June in Costa Rica. An African conference is scheduled for Lagos, Nigeria, in December, and a European conference will be held early next year at an undetermined site.

N-Pact Seen Aid to Tidal Wave Alarm

HONOLULU (AP)—An agreement between Russia and the United States on a nuclear explosion detector system could lead to an international tidal wave warning system, says a Soviet scientist.

Asked about the possibility, Dr. Vladimir Medvedev, a member of the Soviet delegation to the 10th Pacific Science Congress, said Tuesday, "Of course. It's clear (possible)."

Medvedev and other Russian scientists met with the press to discuss oceanography studies.

The idea that U.S.-Soviet agreement on a nuclear blast detection system might lead to a tsunami (tidal wave) warning system was mentioned earlier by U.S. scientist Walter Munk.

Munk of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, La Jolla, Calif., said a study of underground nuclear explosions would help determine how the movement of the earth affects sea motions—thus tsunamis. But he was doubtful about possible U.S.-Soviet cooperation on the matter.

The Vityaz will sail Sept. 3 for French Polynesia, Fiji and Japan, Kort said, probably stopping at Papeete, Tahiti, and Tokyo.

PEN Makes Plea For ROK Newsman

LONDON (Kyodo-Reuter)—International PEN (poets, essayists and novelists) representing over 7,000 writers throughout the world, Tuesday night appealed for clemency for PEN member Ji Yung Song, one of three South Korean newspapermen sentenced to death in Seoul Monday.

A telegram from the Japanese PEN center in Tokyo was received at international PEN headquarters in London Tuesday.

It said the Korean PEN had been unable to move since the military coup and had asked for action internationally "because it is clearly suppression of free speech."

Following receipt of the telegram David Carver, the international secretary of PEN, sent a telegram to Gen. Park Chung Hee, chairman of the supreme council for national reconstruction in Seoul.

Five to Receive Magsaysay Awards

MANILA (UPI)—An American, a Briton and three Asians gathered here yesterday to receive Ramon Magasaysay Awards.

Each of the five recipients was to receive $10,000 and a gold medal today—the anniversary of the birthday of the late Philippine President, in whose honor the awards were set up in 1957.

The winners are:

Dr. Raden Kodijat, Indonesian public health physician, "in recognition of directing the Yaws (skin cancer) campaign bringing far reaching humanitarian and economic benefits to his people."

Nilawan Pintong, Thai civic leader and editor, "in recognition of voluntary participation and leadership in development of effective civic action."

Gus Borgeest, a Briton, born in Ningpo, China, "in recognition of his example of human concern and courage on Sunshine Island in Hong Kong," which he set up for refugees.

Genevieve Caulfield, of Suffolk, Va., "in recognition of international citizenship and help to the blind in Asia."

Amitabha Chothury, assistant editor of Jugantar in Calcutta, "in recognition of upholding high ethical standards of his profession as a guardian of the public conscience."

2 Hindus End Fast On Nehru's Bidding

NEW DELHI (AP)—Two of the three religious men fasting over the dispute on the creation of a separate Indian state for Sikhs announced Wednesday they would give up their fast Thursday morning. They said Premier Nehru would never grant the Sikhs' demand.

One is Swami Rameshwaranand, 71, who has been on a counterfast to that of Master Tara Singh, 76, who vowed to fast unto death unless the Indian government granted the Sikhs a separate state.

The Swami, a Hindu leader in Punjab State where Tara Singh is fasting, is against the creation of the Sikh State.

Tara Singh's fast has now entered its 16th day.

The second Hindu faster, Yogiraj Surya Dev, who is fasting in Amritsar, is also giving up Thursday, Hindu leaders announced here Wednesday.

The decision to end both Hindu fasts followed a meeting of the Hindu organization in New Delhi after receipt of a letter from Nehru urging this step.

port by the commander of the 1st Army, probably Brazil's strongest military force which has its headquarters in Rio. Its commander, Gen. Nestor Souto de Oliveira, sent him a message that his forces were "Ready to receive and fulfill without vacillations and without loss of time any order of Your Excellency as the Chief of the Army."

Congress scheduled a joint session in Brasilia Wednesday to debate a 16-member Parliamentary Commission's recommendation that the Constitution be amended to make the Presidency a chiefly ceremonial post. The governing power would be put in the hands of a Prime Minister chosen by Congress.

The commission approved the plan 10-3—with three members not voting—despite its previous rejection by the military chiefs. Some congressional sources thought Congress might pigeonhole the proposal under pressure from Denys, who wants a constitutional change that will bar the leftist Goulart from the Presidency.

Goulart, heretofore the darling of the left wing who has based his political career on support from the Labor movement, made a bid for Conservative support with a statement issued in Paris.

"No government," he said "will be able to set itself up without the backing of all the responsible forces in Brazil."

The Vice President said he is ready to serve "In the interests of the (Republic's) future and its political, economic, social and spiritual well being." He said he wants to uphold "the laws of the constitution" and to "assure the stability of the regime and the peace of the interior."

Rio, Brasilia and other cities were tense.

Police and army forces used tear gas and clubs to scatter about 500 demonstrators in down town Rio demanding the release of Marshal Henrique Teixera Lott, former War Minister who was detained by the military after announcing support for Goulart.

There was a run on the banks in Brasilia and 60 million cruzeiros ($3,000,000 at the official rate) was withdrawn from the Bank of Brazil alone.

The Army clamped tight restrictions on Recife, Communist stronghold in northeast Brazil. Public meetings were banned.

Censorship was lifted in Rio on incoming news dispatches and Goulart's statement in Paris got top play in the newspapers

Segregation in Ga. Ends After 100 Yrs.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Nine Negro pupils strolled into classes in previously white Atlanta schools Wednesday, and watchful police nipped quickly any hint of trouble.

Thus the traditional school segregation barriers—in force in Georgia and Atlanta for 100 years—tumbled, reluctantly perhaps, but quietly. Total public school segregation now remains in only three Deep South states—Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina.

At the first indication of any trouble at the four high schools being desegregated under Federal court orders, police moved into action. They dispersed small knots of spectators and whisked to police headquarters several persons who gave them arguments.

Selwyn Lloyd Will Attend Accra Meet

LONDON (AP)—Chancellor of the Exchequer Selwyn Lloyd will lead a British delegation to a meeting of Commonwealth Finance Ministers at Accra, Ghana, opening Sep. 12, it was officially announced Wednesday.

The meeting will discuss the British application to join the European Common Market. This application has aroused considerable misgivings in Commonwealth countries, which fear the loss of their traditional trade with Britain.

The Commonwealth Relations Office said Lloyd will be accompanied at the meeting by three ministers—Reginald Maudling, president, Board of Trade, the Earl of Perth, Minister of State at the Colonial Office, and the Duke of Devonshire, Parliamentary Under Secretary at the Commonwealth Relations Office.

Peiping Says Cholera Not China Origin

HONGKONG (AP)—Peiping's denials of the existence of cholera in Communist China have aroused a storm of protest in this British colony adjoining the China mainland.

The dread disease has already taken 11 lives in Hongkong. Eighty-six cases have been confirmed and most of these have been traced across the border to Communist China.

Medical authorities charged Wednesday that the Chinese Communists were "splitting hairs" by claiming the strain isolated from victims in Communist China was "vibrio el tor," which causes paracholera, not true cholera.

A leading authority on tropical diseases said paracholera is a form of cholera closely resembling true cholera. It can be as deadly, he said, as cholera.

The Chinese Communists Tuesday night belatedly admitted 28 persons have died from parachoiera in the southern Chinese province of Kwangtung and a total of 284 paracholera cases have been confirmed there.

The Hongkong Government has lodged no official protest so far but press and public have voiced bitter resentment against what are described as Peiping's dangerously absurd attempts to disclaim responsibility for the outbreak of cholera here.

The independent English language Hongkong Tiger Standard charged Wednesday "The deaths of the unfortunate victims in Hongkong are in large measure a matter for which the world must hold the Chinese Communists responsible."

It said if Peiping had followed the "accepted and civilized procedure" of warning the rest of the world of the existence of a cholera epidemic in Communist China public health authorities here and elsewhere in Southeast Asia could have taken earlier and far more effective precautions against it.

The U.N. World Health Organization reported a cholera epidemic in Communist China earlier this month. The Public Health Department in the neighboring Portuguese colony of Macao announced cholera cases were confirmed in Communist China as early as Aug. 5.

The Chinese Communists, however, have blandly denied these reports from the beginning. At one point they claimed the current cholera outbreak originated in Hongkong and Macao. At another point they accused the United States of spreading the dread disease as part of American bacteriological warfare.

Hefty Air Force Alouette IIIs were being used to ferry rescued people down to Chamonix and Courmayeur, on the Italian side of the Alps, yesterday morning.

Among the first arrivals by helicopter here after dawn were Mr. and Mrs. Luigi Furlani of Rome.

Furlani described the experience as "terrible." "I did not know whether I was cold or not," he said. "I was so scared I had no room for any other feelings."

Indonesian Rebels Surrender to Army

DJAKARTA (Kyodo-Reuter) — Sjafruddin Prawiranegara, leader of a three-year-old rebellion against President Sukarno of Indonesia, has surrendered in North Sumatra, it was officially announced here yesterday.

An Army spokesman said Prawiranegara, former governor of the Bank of Indonesia, surrendered on Aug. 28 at Padang Sidimpuan in Tapanuli District. He was accompanied by a party of 34, which included leaders of the rebel cabinet.

ROK Junta Okays New Labor Union

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean laborers under military rule organized a new labor organization Wednesday with the approval of the military rulers.

A total of 78 delegates representing 12 industries gathered in Seoul to form a "Federation of Korean Trade Union" and elected Lee Kyoo Chul of the National Railroad as its chairman.

da message, but observed that "objectively, no marked progress is thought to have been brought about in the relationship between the two countries by Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan's visit here."

According to the same columnist, both sides are standing pat and did not concede an inch to each other.

"In other words," he said, "neither side appears to be so enthusiastic about the normalization of relations."

He said the Prime Minister may have sought to convey the national feeling in his letter to the Russian Premier which reacted embarrassingly to a series of rude utterances by Mikoyan during his stay here.

It seems, he said, that neither Khrushchev nor Mikoyan really expected their charges against, say, the Japan-U.S. Security Pact to be immediately accepted by the Japanese side.

The columnist then concluded that no progress could be expected in Russian-Japanese relationships, so long as this kind of political haggling continued.

In the Tokyo Shimbun, an essayist wrote that it gave him keen pleasure to note that Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda had succeeded in "leaving no stones unturned—stones Khrushchev had least wanted to see turned up and brought to public attention."

"However, this does not mean that Ikeda intended to pick a fight with the Soviet Premier," he said and added "he has merely tried to press his proposal for mutual respect for each other's social and political systems and pledge not to interfere in each other's domestic affairs."

According to the columnist, it has always been Soviet policy to seize other countries' vulnerable points in the Free World and exploit them to the maximum possible.

According to this columnist, West Berlin, one of the West camp's most vulnerable spots, is being used by the Soviet Union as a tool to rouse Western irritation so as to keep its satellites within its camp. In the case of Japan he cited the Kurile islands and other former Japanese islands in the northern Pacific have been turned into a similar Soviet tool.

The columnist said, however, that "judging from the Ikeda message Japan seems to have at long last learned how to deal with the Soviet Union."

Envoy Cites Ties With Japan

Malaya Fetes 4th Anniversary

By HASHIM SAM
Malayan Charge d'Affaires

On this auspicious day when citizens of the Federation of Malaya, both at home and abroad, are celebrating the 4th anniversary of their country's independence, it gives me great pleasure to extend through the columns of The Japan Times the most cordial and warm greetings of the Government and people of the Federation of Malaya to the Government and people of Japan.

Within a short time after my arrival in Tokyo I have observed with great admiration the unflinching efforts and tireless energy of the Japanese country, be it on an isolated farm or in the heart of a factory.

Malaya has much to learn from Japan. Hence during this year, the Federation Government is sending to Japan four study groups, consisting of Malayans from all walks of life and from various strata of Malayan society, to study and to observe how the Japanese people live and tackle their various problems. The Federation of Malaya and Japan cherished ties of friendship dating back many years, and I have no doubt that these overseas study tours will further strengthen this friendship.

When a delegation of Malayan women visited Japan in June this year, its members returned home with full of praise for the warm hospitality they received especially from those simple farm folks in Gumma who were kind enough to put them up for a few days, giving them the opportunity to live and work together in the rice fields as members of a family; and I do not know of a better way which could help to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the peoples of two countries.

The Japanese people believe in the democratic way of life, and I am proud to say that the citizens of the Federation of Malaya, too, share the same common ideal.

On June 3 this year our Government sent 17 women voluntary social workers and rural leaders and on Aug. 5, 12 legislators to study various aspects of Japanese life in their respective fields. On Aug 28 another party of 16 voluntary workers and rural leaders was sent by our Government to study the present social and rural activi ties in Japan; and in September one group each will be sent to Japan and Republic of Korea.

The Fédération of Malaya is always eager to foster relations not only within the Commonwealth, but also with nations and peoples of all colors and creeds. The world is small, and in this age it is growing rapidly smaller as populations overflow and communications develop. As the lives of men and nations have more impact on one another, and grow more interrelated and interdependent, it is not only morally right but of practical necessity to respect the neighborhood of man.

Malaya is an example of a land where races meet, and we meet in a spirit of neighborliness and friendship. The blend of races in our society did not constitute a weakness but had in fact helped to promote the strength and unity of our nation.

In international relations Malaya will continue to pursue an independent foreign policy designed to contribute toward the promotion and maintenance of world peace and prosperity. Malaya will also continue to cooperate with all friendly countries, especially in the economic and cultural fields.

With this in view, we have reached agreement with Thailand and the Philippines to work on a regional basis for economic and cultural cooperation in Southeast Asia, culminating with the Bangkok Declaration of July 31 this year.

These three countries are jointly inspired by a common desire to think and plan for themselves, adopt and adapt their own ideas for their own areas that would reinforce and supplement the economic thinking and planning of other organizations, such as the ECAFE or the Colombo Plan. As this organization is not aimed against any country or group of countries, it is hoped that other countries in S.E. Asia would eventually join in.

Another matter which is of current interest in our part of the world is that of "Greater Malaysia." Prime Minister Tengku Abdul Rahman brought up recently the question of closer cooperation between the Borneo territories and Singapore with the Federation of Malaya.

This proposal is a strengthening of the already close ties which link the Federation of Malaya with Singapore and with the Borneo territories of Brunei, Sabah and Sarawak. The people of Malaya are following this question with keen interest since Malaya's relations with the states in S.E. Asia are of particular and intimate concern to all of them.

In Malaya itself the Government has embarked on its Second Five-Year Plan (1961-1965). The plan represents a big push in the Government's efforts to provide for the social and economic needs of the nation. The proposed programs will, in course of time transform the Federation, and particularly the rural sector, into a more progressive economy providing the people with a higher level of living and also lay the foundation for further and stable economic growth.

The targets envisaged in the plan have been framed not in terms of ideal and ambitious goals but in terms of objective feasibility which is realistic in relation to Malaya's resources and capacity. Since independence, we have been endeavoring to give a new life to our people. We are determined to give them a new and better standard of living so that, as citizens of an independent nation, they can enjoy the real dignity and privilege of man.

In industrial development, there is every sign that industrialists both foreign and local will continue to invest in greater measure in the Federation. The Treaty of Commerce which was concluded between the Federation and Japan in August 1960, has contributed much toward this development.

In the field of trade, there is further improvement in the overseas trade owing to the favorable prices of our main export commodities, rubber and tin. It is the intention of the Government of the Federation to continue with the liberal trade and economic policies which have always formed the basis of our prosperity.

Thus during the four years of our independence we have seen continuing progress in many fields of national endeavor and an acceleration of activity in other fields.

The past year has been equally successful and the indications are that the year to which we are now looking forward will see a rising tempo of activity and progress which should benefit all the sections of our multi-racial society.

The achievements of the past, and still more the achievements which we hope to accomplish in the coming years will depend in a large measure from the maintenance of that spirit of tolerance, understanding and goodwill between the main racial groups in Malaya, which is so characteristic of our happy land.

Okinawan Leader Here To Ask for More Aid

Akio Nagamine, Speaker of the Ryukyu Legislative Assembly, said yesterday he would ask Japan for more economic assistance in the coming year.

Nagamine, who arrived here last night on a Northwest Airlines plane, said he planned to plead the Okinawan case during meetings with Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda and other political leaders.

He said that Okinawa needed at least ¥6,600 million in aid next year to bring the living standard in the Ryukyus to the Japanese level, a goal often referred to in Japan. He said that the "uncertain U.S. attitude" toward Okinawa and internal Japanese problems stood in the way of greater assistance.

Stepped-up aid, he said, would help to "appease" Okinawan disastisfaction over the recent Ikeda-Kennedy talks in Washington, in which the issue of returning Okinawa to Japan had not been taken up

The Okinawans, he said, are opposed to U.S. missile bases on the islands and are in favor of a return to Japanese rule.

Whale Skeleton Is 5 Million Years Old

The skeleton of a whale found Aug. 20 in the Tama River bed, Tokyo, by a Tokyo schoolteacher out fishing, was recognized by archeological authorities as dating back 5 million years.

Teachers at primary and junior high schools in Akishima in Tokyo's outskirts yesterday continued digging out the skeleton. Authorities say this find is perhaps "the most precious one," archeologically, unearthed in this country.

Several petrified shells were also found in the same vicinity, and archeologists believe the river bed was at one time a shallow sea.

Convulsion Victim Commits Suicide

OSAKA—A 15-year-old boy, a chronic sufferer from convulsions, committed suicide with sleeping pills in Izumiotsu here Tuesday, reportedly out of fear that convulsive fits may attack him during his employment exams to damage his future career.

Akira Okumura, a third-grade student of Izumiotsu's second municipal junior high school, was found by classmates lying dead in his class room with an empty sleeping pill box by his side Tuesday evening.

Akira's family told police that the boy had often been uttering pessimistic remarks in recent days since the fit had attacked him at least once in three days and attacks had become oftener.

He was to graduate from his school and start working next spring. He was going to sit for employment examinations this fall.

The upper part of the crane fell on a beauty parlor in the neighborhood, destroying it.

Yodobashi police are investigating the cause of the incident.

Marker Will Honor Japanese Airmen

A temporary memorial to honor Japanese fliers and ground personnel killed in the Battle of Okinawa will arrive at Naha tomorrow.

The memorial, a wooden marker almost nine feet high, is inscribed with the Japanese characters Kuge no To, which mean Flowers in the Sky. The sumi brush inscription was written by Shozo Kawabe, former general of the Imperial Japanese Army. It will be placed at Mabuni, a hillside overlooking the Pacific Ocean near the village of Miwa.

Later this year, a bronze statue of a uniformed Japanese pilot about to go into action will be raised on the same spot. A committee of former Japanese pilots and other members of the Japanese Army and Navy started the memorial plan. The chairman of the committee whose headquarters is in Naha, is Morisada Tonaki.

The memorial marker, which was flown to Naha by Japan Air Lines, will be dedicated Sept. 20, Aviation Day.

Boy Hit by Truck SuffersBrokenNeck

MITO (Kyodo)—A 10-year-old boy was seriously injured yesterday morning when the bicycle he was riding was struck from behind by a small truck driven by an off-duty policeman on the national highway near here.

Police reported the boy, Masayuki Ibaraki, a fourth-grader of Ishikawa Primary School, Mito, who suffered a broken neck, suddenly cut across the road without looking behind when the policeman, Noboru Kigoshi, 33, of Koga Police Station, Koga, was about to pass him.

Blaze Destroys Hiroshima School

HIROSHIMA (Kyodo)—The Matsumoto Gakuen Commercial High School here was burned down in a fire which broke out about 1 a.m. yesterday.

The fire started from the school gymnasium and spread to adjacent buildings, destroying about 1,700 square meters of floor space before it was brought under control about an hour later.

The teacher on night duty told police the gym had been locked.

Firemen estimated the damage at ¥20 million.

Tories Okay Candidates For House

The Liberal-Democratic Party's election policy committee yesterday unofficially endorsed 45 candidates from prefectural constituencies and 14 from national single constituencies who will be running on the Liberal-Democratic ticket in the House of Councillors elections scheduled for next summer.

Official endorsement is scheduled to be given these candidates in the committee's meeting Sept. 8.

The Upper House election will be held for half—or 127—of the prescribed 250 seats in the House of Councillors. These include 51 from national single constituencies and 76 from prefectural constituencies.

The Tory party now holds 136 seats in the Upper House, and 63 of them will be up for election (17 national single constituencies and 46 prefectural constituencies).

The second endorsements of Liberal-Democratic candidates for the Upper House will be made in late September and the third in early October. The total number of candidates endorsed by the party will number about 60 from prefectural constituencies and about 30 from national constituencies.

In yesterday's executive meeting of the committee, it was decided not to give electoral priority to incumbent Liberal-Democratic Upper House members. It was also decided not to put up more candidates than is required.

Antipolio Hq Closes As Epidemic Over

The Polio Prevention Headquarters of the Tokyo Metropolitan Government was dissolved yesterday with the end of the polio epidemic season.

The Metropolitan Government cleared, at the same time, 14 districts in the Metropolis of its designation as polio-infected areas or areas where the epidemic could possibly become prevalent.

Only four new cases of the disease were reported in the Metropolitan area since the beginning of this month.

Health officials believe this means the end of the polio epidemic season for this year.

Officials said that infantile paralysis struck down 186 persons in the entire Tokyo district this year of whom nine died.

The number of patients and deaths showed an increase of five and two over last year.

Poll Study Council Going to Germany

The mission is headed by Toshiyoshi Miyazawa, vice chairman of the council. Other members are Tadashi Aoki, Liberal-Democratic Party member, and Zengoro Shimagami, Socialist Party member and Shozo Tsuchiya a member of the council.

Data collected by the mission will be used by the council as reference material in its review of the election system in this country.

Shizuoka Mother Kills Twins, Self

KAKEGAWA, Shizuoka Prefecture (Kyodo)—The wife of a shop clerk choked her twin children to death and killed herself by swallowing poisonous agricultural chemicals in what police believed to be a family suicide Tuesday night.

The bodies of Mrs. Yoshiro Ochiai, 24, and her two-month-old twins, Yasuo and Tomoko, were found in bed at Ochiai's house in Higashiyama here at about 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Police believe Mrs. Ochiai killed her children and herself because she could not stand the local prejudice against brother and sister twins.

Russia Releases 5 Boats, Holds 13, Captures 3 More

Soviet Ambassador Nicolai T. Fedorenko yesterday notified the Japanese Government that five Japanese mackerel-pike fishing boats captured by Soviet patrols off Hokkaido Aug. 19 shortly will be returned to Japan.

Fedorenko gave this notice when he visited Agriculture-Forestry Minister Ichiro Kono at the latter's office. The Russian envoy simultaneously requested "proper steps" to be taken by Japan "to prevent any repetition of such incidents," that is, infringement on the Soviets' own fishing rules in the Kurile waters.

The Soviet Ambassador, however, made no reference to 13 small Japanese fishing boats unexpectedly seized by Soviet patrols off eastern Hokkaido Aug. 23.

The five boats to be returned are the Kinsei Maru No. 3, Fukuji Maru, Kyoyu Maru No. 11, Hide Maru No. 11 and Saiwai Maru, averaging less than 20 tons except the last one which is a 69-ton fishery survey boat of the Hokkaido Government.

3 More Seizures

KUSHIRO (Kyodo) — Three more Japanese crab-fishing boats were captured by the Soviets in the southern Kurile waters yesterday afternoon.

A report received by the Kushiro regional office of the Maritime Safety Agency from its patrol boat Tsugaru said the boat saw three Japanese boats being taken by a Soviet patrol boat some 18 kilometers off Akiyuri Island of the Habomai group of islands late yesterday afternoon.

Two of the three boats seized were the No. 8 Horai Maru, a 9-ton crab fishing boat from Nemuro, and the No. 5 Kayo Maru, the MSA office believed. The other fishing boat was not identified.

Argentine School Is Named After Japan

By The Associated Press

Argentina's national primary school No. 236 in Buenos Aires will be officially known as the Japan Primary School beginning Sept. 11 when it observes its founding anniversary, it was announced yesterday.

The primary school had asked the Japanese Government through the Japanese Embassy in Buenos Aires for permission to use the name Japan.

A spokesman for the Japanese foreign ministry said yesterday approval had been cabled in hopes that naming the school after Japan would help promote friendly relations between Japan and Argentina. Some of the other primary schools in Argentina have already been named after various nations of the world.

Argentine President Arturo Frondizi is scheduled to make a goodwill visit of Japan in mid-December at the invitation of the Japanese Government.

Farmers Gather on Fuji Range

Farmers began swarming in groups at the North Fuji firing range yesterday morning in an attempt to block the scheduled practice by U.S. Marines there.

An advance team of 20 members of the U.S. 12th Marine Corps, which is expected to conduct firing practice on the range, visited there yesterday morning and left soon after inspecting the area.

No trouble occurred between the farmers and the U.S. servicemen as the farmers did not notice the arrival of the U.S. team.

Negotiations between representatives of the farmers on the northern slope of Mt. Fuji and the Procurement Agency produced no agreement yesterday and the talks will be resumed today.

Farmers said they are determined to picket the firing range until the Procurement Agency and representatives of the farmers agree on return of the firing range and on compensation for farmers. Farmers' wives and children distributed food and water to pickets who were hiding from police in the firing range yesterday.

A spokesman for the farmers said they would resort to physical protest to prevent the U.S. Marine practice at the firing range, if negotiations between the two parties failed.

2 Farm Leaders Oppose Kono Plan

Leaders of two national agricultural organizations yesterday expressed strong opposition to the so-called Kono Plan calling for partial decontrol of rice sale in Japan.

Opposition to the controversial plan, named after Agriculture Forestry Minister Ichiro Kono, was expressed by Toichi Otsubo, secretary general of the Japan Chamber of Agriculture and Teruo Ichiraku, director of the Central Association of the National Federation of Agricultural Cooperative Unions, at a hearing on the Kono-authored rice control system reform plan held at Prince Hotel at Akasaka, Tokyo by the Liberal-Democratic Party.

Both Otsubo and Ichiraku expressed doubt as to whether the Government could regulate the amount of "free rice" which could be bought by general consumers directly from producers. They said they would oppose the reform plan as long as this doubt existed.

The plan announced July 31 by the Agriculture-Forestry Minister immediately invited opposition and bitter criticisms from the farmers' organizations and the Socialist Party. Even the Government party is split over the advisability of the Kono plan.

'Il Gobbo'

By FOUMY SAISHO

"Il Gobbo" is a real story-based, documentary-mounted, yet high-keyed romantic melodrama turned out by Italy's big-time producer Dino de Laurentiis.

Purportedly it deals with the last 10 months of the life of a violent 19-year-old underground figure named Giuseppe Albano, known more familiarly as "hunchback," to his half-admiring Roman public, who saw him wage his gang war against those in power, first the Nazis and Fascists, then, against the military police of the Allied Forces occupying Rome in the final stages of the war.

Actually, however, the skeleton of the real story was used to give an air of authenticity to a fictional hero tailored to the likings of the film-makers, particularly of director Carlo Lizzano, a talented documentary technician ("China Continent") but a man addicted to romantic melodrama ("Esteria").

His artistic talent lies in putting across his imaginative lyricism via his documentary technique. And it includes the ability to choose right actors, especially the right actor for the title role. In a picture like "Il Gobbo," the actor must be the man who is in touch with the up-to-the-minute realities and yet whose personality is of such quality as to be able to stand apart from literal actualities and impose himself upon his audiences without offending their sensibilities.

And director Lizzano's choice of France's Gerard Blain to play the hunchback has won him far more than half the battle and enabled him to achieve a film highly melodramatic in quality without once arousing mistrust in its believability.

The type Gerard Blain's "hunchback" represents is by no means new, it is the same kind of undersized dynamic gang leader with the heart of gold as played in the past by Jimmy Cagney and Mickey Rooney.

The focal point of interest in this film is not in what he plays but how he plays it, or more precisely, in the surprising fact that he should choose to play it at all. For Gerard Blain is not an oversimplified variety of a he-man. His masculinity lies in the rather unobvious qualities of celebrating and controlling abilities.

But he applies these personal qualities of his to his role in such a manner so that his "hunchback" emerges far more a recognizably human than the traditional flamboyant gangster hero. When he rapes the Fascist cop's schoolgirl daughter (Anna Maria Ferrero), the scene is so charged and reveals so much more of him and his emotional reactions than of his victim that it builds a solid enough groundwork to sustain the film's total emotional impact.

Yet Blain never plays his role narcissistically. There is nothing fortuitous about his performances which are in perfect context with the carefully documented wartime and postwar Italian social scenes. It is a great distinction of Lizzano's film that all his scenes, except the gunfights, have the quality of the prosaic. It is not merely documentation that is striking but the conception of each scene.

The girl and GIs in occupied Rome, for instance, bear this out. An exceptional scene is where the girl, hating herself and the hunchback after his having her and shooting her father, tries to change her masters. And after some success at a local bar with soldiers, she comes home with one of them in his jeep, confident that he will hear her out and help, but gets casually dropped on a deserted street, and her customer serenely cruises away for a better time somewhere else.

Her hate-love relations with the hunchback drag in sordid circumstances in which she tries to retain her relations with black-marketeers and pimps in order to convince herself that she does not love him.

Director Lizzano's love theme is consistently played out to the end, love overwhelming all, even life itself, in its culmination.

"Il Gobbo" will be playing at the New Toho from Sept. 3.

France's Gerard Blain and Italy's popular young actress Anna Maria Ferrero play the leading roles in "Il Gobbo," a stirring Italian drama about a hunchback bandit hero in wartime and postwar Rome. It opens at the New Toho on Sept. 3.

Dennis Lotis stars as the scientist in a chiller, "City of the Dead," an RKO release, which opened Wednesday at all Tokyu chain theaters for a week. Lotis battles with the "witches" who killed his sister. Christopher Lee and Patricia Russell co-star.

Hersey's Novel Ready for Movie

Shirley Ann Field, who will be remembered in "Saturday Night and Sunday Morning," will co-star with Steve McQueen in the screen adaptation of John Hersey's novel, "The War Lover," which starts production in Britain shortly.

She plays a member of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force who becomes involved with two American flyers. Arthur Hornblow produces and Philip Leacock directs for Columbia Pictures.

Teen-Ager to Star With Chevalier

Fifteen year-old Hayley Mills will make her fifth film soon in Britain. She plays the Plymouth girl, Mary Grant, who goes in search of her sea-captain father in Walt Disney's film version of Jules Verne's "The Castaways." Her co-star is Maurice Chevalier. Robert Stevenson, who made that other Disney success, "The Swiss Family-Robinson," will direct.

'The Last Sunset'

By MARY EVANS

"The Last Sunset," judging by its cast and crew (director Robert Aldrich and writer Dalton Trumbo), is intended to be a fine, out of the way Western. Unfortunately it is very difficult to make an excellent Western and the prime requirements are an imaginative director and an original book, both of which are lacking in this film.

Not that it doesn't have its interesting elements, but nothing is thought through sufficiently. For one thing, the basic characters are not clearly conceived, the shadowiest figure being one of the most important, Kirk Douglas. He plays a fugitive from the law traveling in the hinterlands of Mexico during the time when that area was a refuge for defeated Confederate officers, whose homes, or whose interest in home, had been destroyed.

Douglas is supposed to be a wild, flashing fellow—he's wanted for murder and is described as voraciously fond of women—but this side of his nature is never shown except for a few rather foolish, boyish incidents.

What does come off is his poetical side, although this is more dreary than druidical as the only poem he recites is one he composed when drunk.

Simpler but at least clear is his opponent Rock Hudson, playing suitably a strong, uncomplicated fellow. Hudson has come to Mexico to arrest Douglas for past misdeeds but stays to rival him for the hand of Dorothy Malone, who seems to have been a flame of Douglas' long ago.

All three, plus Carol Lynley who performs winningly as Malone's daughter, join hands to drive a herd of cattle up to California.

This is a most unfortunate venture, as far as the picture goes, because, although it should have been the easiest section to bring alive visually, it is the least satisfying and indeed is a cliche-ridden, hackneyed lost opportunity, falling back eventually on that refuge of desperate directors, the quick-sand pit.

Romance develops, reasonably enough, and the only question seems to be, reasonably enough, will Hudson let Douglas escape? In order to make the picture "interesting," a somewhat shocking ending is violently introduced, leaving all sorts of heavy questions hanging and furnishing someone a beginning for a very involved Western.

It opens at the Hibiya Theater on Sept. 9.

Kirk Douglas (with back toward camera) and Rock Hudson face each other with guns blazing in the Universal release "The Last Sunset," opening at the Hibiya on Sept. 9. Who will win the girl, Dorothy Malone?

'Kwai' Team Films Arabia's Lawrence

Sam Spiegel and David Lean, producer and director of "Lawrence of Arabia," were the team responsible for "The Bridge on the River Kwai." Now they have been joined in the Jordanian Desert by Sir Alec Guinness, who starred in "The Bridge."

Sir Alec played Lawrence on the London stage last year in Terence Rattigan's play, "Ross," but in the film he is impersonating King Faisal.

Peter O'Toole, who plays Lawrence in the film has now spent five months in the desert and can ride a camel like an expert. He has failed, however, to harden his feet, as Lawrence did, so as to walk barefoot on the scorching sands without discomfort.

Camels, according to O'Toole, are easier to handle than horse—once you have mastered their peculiarities. The Lyons Den

By LEONARD LYONS

JUDGE LEARNED HAND, who died recently, once was asked to define heaven. The 89-year-old jurist said that heaven is a place where in the morning there'd be a polo game with Hand scoring the winning goal; in the afternoon there'd be a football game with Hand scoring the winning touchdown, and in the evening a public dinner addressed by Voltaire, where a heckler would shout: "Aw, sit down and shut up, Voltaire—and let Hand speak."

SANDRA CHURCH flew to Hollywood last week to screen-test for two roles—the title role in "Gypsy," which she played on Broadway, and the role of Marlon Brando's wife in "The Ugly American" . . . Noelle Adam, the ballet star, is taking singing lessons here while her husband, Sydney Chaplin is rehearsing in "Subways Are for Sleeping" . . . Paddy Chayefsky may write the screen play of "Last of the Just," which Jules Dassin will direct.

THE SEPTEMBER ISSUE of McCall's features a new "Mother-In-Law's Prayer," by Sylvia R. Lyons—my wife. It's really part of a trilogy. The first, published last year, was "Mother's Prayer, 1960." The second is "Mother-In-Law's" Prayer, 1961." The third is a work in progress and tentatively titled "Grandmother's Prayer—1964." (EPS)

"King Kong," the classic old American trick film that made a historic hit, will be presented today. A movie director and a beautiful actress head for an island inhabited by a huge and sinister creature known as King Kong. Soon the actress is captured by natives of the island to be sacrificed to King Kong. The director manages to save her, captures King Kong and takes him to New York to show him off. ANIMAL STORIES

Two films, one showing field mice and the other squirrels, will be featured on this program. The field mice is a rapidly reproducing rodent that makes itself a nuisance by chewing away at trees and plants. It has many natural enemies such as the weasel and the snake; but this hardly retards the reproduction rate. Such natural aspects of this rodent will be shown.

As for the squirrel, this friendly little creature lives on peaceful terms with other small denizens of the forest such as the woodpecker and the monkey. The life of the squirrel will be shown in this documentary film arranged in story form.

9:15-9:45 p.m. (ch. 4)
WAR AGAINST CANCER

Today's program will be a special color filming of surgery for lung cancer, taken at the Tokyo Medical University Hospital on July 14. The hospital is one of the leading institutions in the field of cancer surgery.

The two-hour operation was on a 25-year-old patient, 18 minutes of the major portion of the operation being shown.

WATERLESS WATERWAY

An ironic testimony to weak planning is the waterless Aichi Waterway, scheduled to be opened amid great fanfare last June, only to have the new waterway ripped open at well over 150 places in a storm even before water was sent along its course. Today's film will study the aftermath—what efforts are being made for improvement and for reconstruction of the damaged portions, and the faces of the waiting people at the thirsty farms and factories, ready with pipes and faucets in place but no water to run through them.

10:45-11:00 p.m. (ch. 6)
MOUNT OF LOST SOULS

Mt. Osoreyama on Shimokita Peninsula far north in Aomori Prefecture is center of a supernatural belief that all the dead of the Tohoku district assemble there at the end of July every year. A great festival is held on this rough red volcanic mountain at this time, presided over by ugly hags known as "Itako" who are said to be the mediums through which the messages of the dead may be delivered to their grieving family. And at the top of the mountain there is the temple Entsuji, presiding over the whole superstitious ritual.

Hawks Cop 1st Tilt In 8 Starts; Dragons Rip Swallows Twice

Ace submarine hurler Tadashi Sugiura pitched a three-hitter last night against the Daimai Orions to pace the Nankai Hawks to their first victory in eight games, 3-1, at Osaka Stadium.

With the victory the Hawks widened their Pacific League lead to five games over the second-place Nishitetsu Lions, who were shut out 2-0 by the Kintetsu Buffaloes at Chunichi Stadium.

It was the first triumph for the Hawks after they had dropped six games in a row and battled to a tied game Tuesday.

A triple by Yoshitoshi Hirose in the third inning and single by Nobuyasu Morishita brought the Hawks' first run. The Hawks added two more runs on a bases-loaded single by Sugiura in the fourth.

Sugiura was credited with his 19th win of the season. The only Orion run came on a seventh-inning solo homer by Takao Katsuragi, his 13th.

The Buffaloes defeated the Lions on a bases-loaded single by Hirobumi Naito behind the tight pitching of Tsutomi Kuroda and rookie Toshiaki Tokuhisa who limited the Orions to three scattered hits.

It was the first victory for the Buffaloes in their eight encounters with the Lions.

At Komazawa Stadium the third-place Toei Flyers blanked the Hankyu Braves 1-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Masayuki Dobashi, who posted his 21st triumph against 12 losses.

In the only Central League games of the day the Chunichi Dragons swept a doubleheader from the Kokutetsu Swallows 6-4 and 5-0 to pad their lead to one and a half games, and the defeat sent the Swallows down to third place. The idle Giants took over second place, one game in front of the Swallows.

In the opener the Swallows tied the score at 4-all on eighth-inning homers by Masataki Tsuchiya and Sadayuki Tokutake but the Dragons scored their winning runs on a 10th inning single by Masuo Maeda with two men aboard and an error. Ace righthander Hiroshi Gondo chalked up his 28th win against 13 defeats.

The Dragons breezed to an easy win in the nightcap as they showered 13 hits on four hurlers. Toshio Naka led the Dragon attack with a perfect day at bat, four-for-four, including two home runs.

Record Falls In World Biking Event

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—Hendrik Nijdam, 25-year-old Dutch cycling star, set a new 4,000 meters record for the Oerlikon track here Tuesday night in leading the qualifiers for the quarterfinals in the pursuit event of the world championships.

He covered the distance in 4 minutes 56.5 seconds—seven-tenths of a second faster than the reigning world champion, Maurice Delattre of France.

Leandert van der Meulen of the Netherland won the world amateur motor-paced cycling title.

Van der Meulen led all the way in the one-hour race.

Siegfrid Wustrow of East Germany was second, 40 meters behind the Dutchman. George Scholtze of East Germany, last year's world champion, was third.

Van der Meulen covered 67.285 kilometers in the hour.

Rudi Altig of West Germany retained his world professional cycling pursuit title, defeating Willy Tripp of Switzerland in a thrilling final.

The lead changed from one rider to the other throughout the race, but there was never more than a meter or two between them.

Altig's time for the 5,000 meters race was 6:12.5 minutes. Trepp was exactly one second behind.

Leando Faggin of Italy defeated Peter Post of the Netherlands to take third place.

ZURICH (Kyodo-Reuter)—Masashi Omiya and Tetsuo Osawa of Japan were eliminated from the amateur pursuit event at the world cycling championships here Tuesday night.

Osawa clocked 5 minutes 12.4 seconds, compared with the limit time of 5 minutes 3.1 seconds among the eight cyclists who put up the best times and qualified for the quarterfinals.

Osawa's time was the 19th fastest of the 32 competitors.

Both Japanese riders are also entered for the amateur road race at Berne on Saturday.

Yanks Bow to Twins But Maintain Lead; M-Men Held in Check

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees, limited to four singles by Camilo Pascual, lost 3-0 at Minnesota Tuesday night but retained a one-and-a-half game lead in the American League pennant race when the Chicago White Sox beat second-place Detroit 4-3 with an unearned run in the seventh inning.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds won their third in a row 3-0 by beating Pittsburgh to stay three-and-a-half games ahead of Los Angeles. The second-place Dodgers won 2-1 at Chicago as lefthander Sandy Koufax beat the Cubs with a two-hitter.

Milwaukee replaced San Francisco in third place by beating the Giants 7-6 in 13 innings on Ed Mathews' home run. The St. Louis Cardinals won their eighth in a row, 5-4, in the opener of a twi-night pair at Philadelphia on Bill White's ninth-inning triple, but the Phils took the second game 4-3 on a wild pitch and Ruben Amaro's single in the sixth.

In the other American League games, the Los Angeles Angels defeated third-place Baltimore 6-5 in the first game of a twi-night double-header despite Jim Gentile's 41st and 42nd home runs, pushing across the winning run on a sixth-inning squeeze bunt by winning pitcher Ryne Duren.

The Angels then made it a sweep by also winning the nightcap 6-5 on 11th inning home runs by Joe Koppe and Steve Bilko.

Cleveland handed Washington an 11th straight defeat, 6-4, with six runs in the seventh inning, five of them unearned. Boston beat Kansas City 8-4 with six runs in the ninth, coming from behind on Frank Malzone's two-out, two-run single.

Pascual (12-13) struck out nine—three times putting a called third strike past Mickey Mantle—and walked but two, while pitching his sixth shutout of the season, second over the Yankees.

Mantle, now just one game ahead of Babe Ruth's record home run pace, was 1-for-4. Roger Maris, whose 51 homers put him eight games ahead of Ruth's 1927 pace, was 0-for-3.

The Twins scored their third victory—all shutouts—over New York in 16 games with an unearned run in the third inning on Lennie Green's single, an error and Billy Martin's sacrifice fly against Ralph Terry (11-2). That ended Terry's shutout streak at 24-1/3 innings, and Earl Battey's two-run double put the crusher on his six-game winning streak in the sixth inning.

The White Sox broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh when winning righthander Ray Herbert (9-12) led off a single and came around on errors by Norm Cash and Chico Fernandez, who had driven in two Tiger runs. Frank Lary (19-7) was the loser. Like the Tigers, he had won five in a row.

Singles by Vada Pinson, Jerry Lynch and Gordy Coleman broke a scoreless duel for the Reds in the sixth inning and beat Bob Friend (12-17). Reliever Jim Maloney nailed it for southpaw Jim O'Toole (14-9), who gave up all of the Bucs' six hits, by fanning pinch-hitter Rocky Nelson with the bases loaded in the ninth.

A walk, a sacrifice and Frank Howard's single drove in the clincher for the Dodgers in the seventh inning before the Cubs broke through a no-hit bid by Koufax (15-9). Chicago's first hit was a two-out single by Dick Bertell in the seventh. It scored George Altman, who had reached base on an error by Koufax. Ron Santo got the other Cub hit, a single, with two out in the ninth.

Richards Quits Oriole Pilot Post

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paul Richards announced late Tuesday that he is resigning as manager of baseball's Baltimore Orioles. He has been offered the job as general manager of the Houston club in the National League for a period of five years.

Richards is understood to have given Houston his terms and it is believed that the new club's directors approved them in detail.

Richard's contract at Baltimore has two more years to run, however, and one of the clauses specifies that he may not dicker for any baseball job that calls for his services as field manager. He would not be barred from serving with another club as general manager, but baseball men close to the Baltimore club believe Richards will devote his full time to personnel and the development of players for the Houston club.

Richards' decision should occasion no great surprise in Baltimore, since speculation about it has been going on for some time.

Richards, in announcing his resignation, said:

"It is up to them whether the resignation is effective immediately or whether I'll finish out the season."

Richards said he had had several talks with officials of the new Houston team which will begin National League competition next season. The Colts want to hire Richards as general manager.

"As of this minute," said Richards, "I am among the ranks of the unemployed. I have made no contractual agreement with Houston."

Houston has been without a general manager since Gabe Paul resigned for a similar position with the Cleveland Indians.

'All but Signed'

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—George Kirksey, executive vice president and acting general manager of the Houston Colts, said Tuesday night Baltimore Oriole Manager Paul Richards has "all but signed" a contract to become general manager of the new National League team.

Dutchman Cops Marathon Swim

TORONTO (UPI)—Phenomenal Dutch marathoner Herman Willemse won the 15-mile Canadian National Exhibition swim and the top prize money of $6,000 for a time of 6 hours 54.1 minutes here Tuesday.

The 27-year old schoolteacher from Utrecht shook off a mid-afternoon challenge from veteran United States pro Tom Park of Lakewood, Calif., to lead the field of 39 entrants by a clear half-mile at the finishing mark.

Johnson Beats Cotton to Keep His NBA Crown

By HAL WOOD

SEATTLE (UPI)—Light-heavyweight champion Harold Johnson, finishing strong against nearly-blinded challenger Eddie Cotton, won a split 15-round decision Tuesday night in defense of his National Boxing Association (NBA) version of the world title.

Cotton, a 1-2 underdog, put up a surprisingly strong show but just couldn't withstand the sledge-hammer blows of the champion.

A big knot appeared over Cotton's left eye in the sixth and seventh rounds and in the eighth he started to bleed from his right eyelid. By the end of the fight, the swelling had completely closed his left eye.

There were no knockdowns and very few solid punches but the pace was fast and the boxing clever and the fans loved it. There wasn't a boo all night.

A disappointing crowd of about 4,000 watched the battle. Seattle's first title bout in four years.

The champion weighed 173 and the challenger a puffed-up 170.

Referee Jimmy Rondeau scored it 147-145 and judge Dr. Norman Kunde 147-145 for the champion. Judge Sam Heller had it 148-144 for Cotton.

It was a fast-moving battle from the start between two men who had refused to shake hands all week and barely recognized each other in the ring when they were brought together for instructions.

During the first three rounds, both men were warned for hitting low blows.

But after that, they were head hunting. In the 10th round, Johnson started bleeding lightly from the nose.

The best round of the fight was the eighth, when Johnson landed two jarring rights to the head that shook up the Seattle favorite.

Johnson used a semi-bolo punch with some effect in the early rounds but shifted to the head when Cotton started having trouble with his eyes.

Starting with the 11th round, Cotton was in trouble seeing from the left side.

After losing the 10th and 11th, Cotton made a comeback in the 12th, swinging wildly, and gained an edge. But Johnson just fended him off the rest of the way.

Manager Pat Olivieri announced immediately after the bout that he now would like a crack at either world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson or Archie Moore, who owns a portion of the light-heavyweight crown.

In the meantime, Johnson will tangle with heavyweight challenger Eddie Machen in Portland next month. The victory was the 16th in a row for the champion and the loss snapped Cotton's win streak at six straight.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., United States Davis Cup team member and third ranking player in the country, was suspended by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association (USLTA) Tuesday for bad conduct. He was declared ineligible for the national championships starting Friday and other amateur events of the USLTA sanction.

George Barnes, president of the USLTA, said Ralston was suspended because of "bad conduct during the Davis Cup American Zone final against Mexico and Cleveland as reported by the official referee, M. D. Kellie."

Japanese Swimmers Score 2 More Wins in Sofia

SOFIA (Kyodo-Reuter)—Japan scored two successes in the swimming pool at the world student games here Tuesday, taking their tally of games victories to nine—all but one scored in swimming and diving.

Tadao Tosa outclassed his opponents in the springboard diving, totaling 138.89 points for a lead of more than 10 over the runnerup. The second victory was scored by the men's 400-meter medley relay team in games record time of 4 minutes 17.1 seconds.

An unexpected defeat for Japan came with the failure of Tatsuo Fujimoto and Tohachiro Matsuki to hold South Africa's Murray McLachlan in the 1,500-meter freestyle. The South African rallied strongly in the last 200 meters to win in games record time of 18 minutes 19.8 seconds, with Matsuki taking second place just ahead of Fujimoto.

Matsuki clocked 18:21.6 and Fujimoto 18:23.1.

Sanda Jordan, little-fancied Romanian girl, won the 200-meter breaststroke, beating the holder of the title, Britain's Christine Gosden, in 2 minutes 59.6 seconds. The Soviet Union won the women's 400-meter freestyle relay in 4 minutes 39.5 seconds.

In the lawn tennis tournament, the Yugoslav Davis Cup player, Bora Jovanovic, reached the semifinals of the men's singles by beating Japan's Fujii 6-1, 8-6.

Jovanovic and Nikola Pilic beat the Japanese pair of Fujii and Konishi in the quarterfinals of the men's doubles 3-6, 8-6, 8-6. Japan is, however, represented in the semifinals by Mori and Akutagawa, who meet the Italians Drisaldi and Gaudenzi for a place in the final.

SOFIA (Kyodo-Reuter)—The Japanese men's team beat Iran 103-70 (halftime 54-35) in the basketball tournament Wednesday.

Seki Gets Major Test Against Medel Tonight

By KATSUNDO MIZUNO

Japanese ring hope Mitsunori Seki gets his second major test of the year tonight when he faces Mexico's Jose Medel, No. 1 bantamweight in the world, in a 10-round bout at the Korakuen Ice Palace.

Seki, ranked No. 5 among world flyweights, lost by a decision to Thailand's Pone Kingpetch in a world flyweight title match in Tokyo June 27.

A win over Medel could mean a new start for Seki up the world bantamweight ladder.

Both fighters are required by their contracts to enter the ring at 119 pounds or less.

Seki, who had great difficulty in making the 112-pound fly limit for the Pone match, is reported to have run into weight difficulties for the coming bantam fray also.

However, he can be expected to put up a better fight this time. After 60 rounds of sparring for the Medel encounter, Seki has displayed a powerful right and straight left combination.

Medel has gone four or five rounds daily with two Japanese sparmates since his arrival here last Friday. He is speedy and has a lethal right hook.

Medel, who copped the Mexican bantam title in August 1959, also gained the North American crown by beating Herman Marquez in a 12-round bout last March.

His only setback in more recent bouts was a 10th-round KO loss at the hands of world bantam king Eder Jofre in August 1960.

To date, he has a record of 47 victories in his pro fighting career (31 by knockouts), against 17 losses and 4 draws.

His Japanese foe, Seki, has won 21, lost 10 and drew once.

Sam Snead's GOLF SCHOOL

How to Hit a Shot and Keep It Low

EPS

Among the problem shots which you'll run into in any normal round of golf is the shot where you must keep the ball pretty low. Sometimes overhanging branches make this shot necessary or it could be that a strong wind makes it necessary for you to keep the ball low.

Use an iron that doesn't have too much loft. Say, the No. 3 or the No. 4 iron.

Next, close the clubface when you address the ball and keep it closed when you contact that ball, too. That reduces any height the shot might have.

Finally, play the ball back toward your right foot, as seen in the illustration. I also play the ball a bit further from my body as this tends to flatten out my swing a bit and keep the shot lower. That's a personal habit of mine that may not work for you.

Don't reduce your swing for this shot. Make it as full as ever, and carry out your normal follow-through. Don't chop the ball and quit, assuming that will keep the ball low. It won't.

CycleExports To U.S. Show Drastic Drop

Japanese bicycle exports to the U.S. in fiscal 1961 will be about half the set target of 200,000 units, according to an estimate by local bicycle manufacturing circles.

The exports, which showed an impressive increase of more than 14 times in 1960 over 1959, fell sharply during recent months due to increased imports of British bicycles and higher U.S. tariff rates.

The exports to the U.S. in fiscal 1960 jumped to 130,000 units, worth $2,544,000, from 9,177 units in the previous fiscal year.

Greatly encouraged by the tremendous increase, Japanese bicycle makers set the export target for the current fiscal year at 200,000 units.

Business, however, did not pick up as the makers had expected. The export contracts signed during the April-through-July period, were down to an average of 1,500 units a month.

Exports to the U.S. usually reach a peak during the August-September period when American traders buy bicycles in large quantities for Christmas sale. But all through August not a single large export contract was signed.

A spokesman for the manufacturing circles indicated Wednesday that exports during the current fiscal year ending March 1962, would fall even below the 100,000 unit mark even if the goods were sold at cut prices.

The spokesman said British manufacturers this year cut the price of their products to between $17 and $18. The export price of British bikes last year was $22 f.o.b. against Japan's $23.

To make the situation worse for the Japanese, the U.S. tariff rate for Japanese bicycles was raised this year to 22.5 per cent from last year's 11.5 per cent, he pointed out.

He also said the large increase in the exports of Japanese bicycles to the U.S. last year was now hitting back at the Japanese makers.

Freightage Increased 10% On 3 Routes From F.E.

Three freightage conferences, each made up of shipping agents plying the Far East-Brazil, the Far East-South Africa and the Far East-East Africa routes, Tuesday decided to effect a general increase of about 10 per cent to all tariff rates effective from Nov. 1.

Notice to that effect was issued to contracting shippers simultaneously.

In the case of the Far East-Brazil Shipping Conference, the revised rates will be made applicable to cargo consigned by noncontracting shippers as from Aug. 31, whereas the Far East-East Africa Freight Conference will enforce the new freightage for like shippers as from Aug. 29.

Steadily increasing operating costs such as crews' wages and cargo handling costs were cited as reasons for the freightage increase.

Cargo transportation charges on the Japan-Philippines route will be raised by 10 per cent effective Nov. 1, the Japan-Philippines Freight Conference announced.

The boost, the first in four years on the line, is needed, according to the league, in the light of recent increases in shipping and loading expenditures.

A total of 16 Japanese shipping companies, including Daido Shipping, Hinode Steamship, Iino Shipping, NYK, OSK, are now operating on the line.

Taiwan May Seek Less Trade Here

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist China wants gradually to free itself from reliance on Japan in its foreign trade. It even looks forward some day to competing with Japan for Asian and Middle Eastern markets.

When Japan and Taiwan signed their first annual trade agreement in 1962, this island's total exports amounted to U.S. $11,527,000. All but 4.4 per cent of this was made up of agricultural products such as rice, sugar, bananas and canned foods.

Except for a few thousand tons of sugar, nearly all of these agricutural products were sold to Japan.

The trade pact called for a balanced account under the barter system. But with its industry still in the infant stage, Taiwan had nothing else to exchange for badly needed machinery and chemical fertilizers. Besides, there was no other potential market for the island's farm exports.

Today the situation has changed somewhat. But trade with Japan still represents a major portion of Taiwan's foreign trade.

In 1960, about $160 million of the nation's total exports and imports of $422 million was with Japan. Agricultural products still dominated Taiwan's exports to Japan, and machinery and fertilizers were the island's chief imports from Japan.

The $160 million worth of trade with Japan represented 40 per cent of the nation's total two-way foreign trade volume. Some trade officials here say this 40 per cent could be shifted to other countries without causing Taiwan serious financial losses.

Sake Prices to Go Up In Keihanshin Area

OSAKA—Retail prices of special and first-grade sake produced in the Keihanshin District will go up starting tomorrow by ¥55 per 1.8 liter.

The special grade will be ¥1,150, and the first-grade ¥910. Some of the first-grade will be priced at ¥855.

Prices of second-grade sake will also go up by ¥20 and its retail prices will be ¥510 to ¥530.

Breweries here said the increase was inevitable in view of higher rice price, personnel expenses and transportation costs.

Brazil Iron Mill May Be Held Up

Fourteen Japanese steel and machinery companies participating in a joint Japan-Brazil project to build an iron mill in Brazil are worried over a possible hitch in the project due to the new political upheaval in that country.

The project, involving the establishment of a large iron mill in Minas Gerais State, had been launched in 1959 with the Japanese companies providing 40 per cent of the initial capital of 3,200 million cruzeiros.

Due to a serious inflation in Brazil, however, the Brazilian Government recently proposed an increase in capital of the joint firm, called the Usiminas Iron and Steel Co., and planned to send a delegation here before the end of this month.

Although Japanese investors, following consultations with the Japan Usiminas Co. which represents the Brazilian firm, were ready to accept the capital increase, the coming of the delegation now appeared likely to be delayed.

The investing Japanese firms are now prepared for the seeming inevitability of postponement of completion of the first blast furnace, which had been scheduled for next March.

Apart from the project, reconsideration was expected concerning a plan by the Japanese iron and steel industry to send a survey and planning mission to Brazil in mid-September to rebuild Victoria Port to haul ore from the Itabira iron mine in Minas Gerais State to the Atlantic coast.

DeadlinePostponed In U.S. Auto Strike

DETROIT (UPI)—Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers Union, returned to the bargaining table at General Motors Wednesday after the Government requested that he postpone the strike deadline against the U.S. auto industry until at least Sept. 6.

Reuther personally resumed command of negotiations after his union voted Tuesday night to single out GM, which employs 310,000 UAW members, as its first strike target. But the union agreed at the same meeting to delay any walkout until Sept. 6.

GM, Ford and Chrysler also agreed Tuesday night to go along with a request by the Federal Mediation Service to extend current contracts beyond the scheduled expiration Thursday night and continue negotiations.

Trends in Economics

By ANALYST

How Strong Is Japan's Economy?

Frequent reference to Japan's physical and moral growth and stamina, and readiness to assume greater international responsibilities and commitments has set the Japanese people to thinking and asking themselves in all seriousness, "just how strong is Japan actually?" and "do we possess the attributes of a great power, both as a nation-state and a people?"

But the fact of the matter is that national evaluation and pressures for assumption of heavier responsibilities are coming mainly from outside sources and not from inside.

Attitude of the international monetary authorities is gradually tending toward more equal treatment as regards Japan's foreign exchange capacities with the advanced nations and less exceptional treatment and favors. The developing nations are also turning to Japan for more economic cooperation and pinning on her the attributes of an advanced nation.

Doubt and Suspicion

Normally and in principle, such designation and recognition are accepted with favor and gratitude. Currently, however, the Japanese attitude is rather to view such attributes with doubt and even suspicion, and to counter with explanations and denials, and even with entreaties for special favors and considerations. The attitude is that of playing down Japan's capacities and potentialities.

Even in the field of economics Japanese leaders use such descriptions as; thin and shallow, highly fluctuating, unbalanced, dual structures as agriculture vs. manuafacturing, small business vs. big business, rural economy vs. city economy, frequent balance of payments difficulties, unbalanced living standards, big population and poor resources, etc. In money and banking, attention is called to the underdeveloped monetary policy instruments, heavy bank dependence on Bank of Japan credits making for perennial bank "overlending," underdeveloped capital markets causing business to "overborrow" from banks, market mechanism which is neither free nor developed, etc.

The public sector of the economy is beset by poor and inadequate highways, miserable housing situation, inadequate utilities, crowded and poor educational facilities, lagging condition of health and sanitation, etc.

National resources are meager and so dependence on imports of necessary materials is heavy. But exports which must go to pay for these imports is subject to wide fluctuations, and currently it is falling behind, which is the basic cause of deficits in the overseas accounts.

Some Signs of Disunity

Attention is also directed to the social and political scene beset by wide and varied splits on issues of national and international significance. Agreement is hardly possible, much less unity of action. Fission is wide and deep on such vital issues as, peace and war, loyalty and patriotism, international alignment and even Constitution making. The people are still divided on the National Anthem, national holidays, National Foundation Day and whether the Constitution was forced upon them or freely accepted. School authorities can't control student political activities, and the teachers union is getting out of hand. Police force is weak and inadequate. Even traffic control is neglected.

However, outside observers say that Japan has a working democracy, a modern and organized state, intelligent, skilled and diligent population, and an economy that is quite close to the U.S.-W. European level. Objectively viewed, Japan does have many of the attributes of a major power and hence should assume responsibilities consistent with such status. However, there are aspects in national living and mentality which render the situation of no easy interpretation. Then too, there are some cases of "having and wanting one's cake and eating it, too," "taking it for granted" and "sitting on the fence" conceptions.

There is much in the Japanese situation that is difficult of objective analysis and does not come under the category of "reason" or "scientific" in the Western sense, and hence care must be taken so as not to create misunderstandings and untoward reactions.

Notes for Investors

Stock prices continued to dip since the turn of the week and the Dow-Jones average yesterday went below the ¥1,620-mark, which was regarded as the bottom of recent decline, marking a 11.7-per cent drop from the recent highest mark recorded on July 18.

Yesterday's Dow-Jones average of ¥1,615.37 was a return to the average which prevailed in early April. The simple average of ¥186.99 was also a return to the lows of last yearend.

Stock market observers said the sharp decline in stock prices was chiefly attributable to the disappointment on the part of investors on the news that the Yamaichi Securities Co. Tuesday sold the so-called "Yamaichi items," such as Canon Camera and Okuma Machinery Works brands. They argued that Yamaichi started selling these stocks because it had already completed intracompany operation to yield the dividend of about ¥50 per ¥1,000 of its open-end investment trusts.

Meanwhile, stock market sources disclosed that Hitachi Ltd. is expected to announce a 50 per cent capital increase today. They said the company was scheduled to allocate one new stock to every two existing stocks at the end of September. A trial calculation on the basis of current stock price, ¥131 showed that the company's exrights stock price would become ¥122, and the annual yield including the capital increase premium would rise to 6.2 per cent if the current 15-per cent dividend were maintained.

Technical Consultants Body Planned

The International Trade and Industry Ministry plans to set up an organization called the Mining and Manufacturing Technical Consultants Group as a means of increasing Japan's export of plant equipment.

Ministry officials explained details of the projected organization to industrial circles concerned Tuesday and asked for their cooperation.

According to the MITI plan, the projected group will carry on its activities with funds furnished by the Government. MITI plans to invest a sum of ¥2,000 million in the group in fiscal 1962. The ministry is considering the raising of funds among private industrial circles.

The group will dispatch mining and manufacturing experts to less industrialized countries and offer technical advice and other service free of charge.

A total of 10 teams, each composed of three to five consultants, will be sent in fiscal 1962, the initial year. The number of teams and consultants will be increased gradually.

TOKYO STOCKS

Kyodo

The stock market suffered another steep tumble yesterday in dull trading.

A late buying support provided by Nikko Securities Co. and a marked decline in the outstanding loan balance of the Japan Securities Finance Co. failed to perk up the market.

The average price of the 225 listed stocks sagged ¥27.31 to ¥1,613.37 as an estimated 40 million shares changed hands.

Almost all specified brands were bearish. Ajinomoto, Mitsukoshi and Heiwa Real Estate lost ¥7 to ¥9.

In the miscellaneous group, gains were sparse. Major gainers included Kyokuyo Hogei, Tohoku and Hokkaido power companies and Tokai Kanko.

Okuma Iron Works took another heavy setback of ¥80. Toshiba sank to the year's low. Hitachi, Fuji Iron and Steel and other large company shares also declined.

Losses ranging from ¥4 to ¥10 were recorded in almost all sections.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined Tuesday. Trading was a little more active, but still relatively slow.

The market was slightly lower at the opening. Losses widened until the final hour when there was a little improvement.

Most stocks were above their lows for the day at the close with most losses ranging from a few cents to around $2 a share.

It was another narrow market with only 1,206 issues appearing on the tape. Of these, 489 declined, 489 advanced and 277 closed unchanged. There were 31 new highs for the year and 15 new lows.

Most of the petroleums, steels, aircrafts and utilities declined. Autos were mixed. Some tobaccos, drugs and coppers advanced.

The Associated Press 60-stock average fell .40 to 252.10.

Volume totaled 3,160,000 shares compared with 3,130,000 shares traded Monday.

Stocks declined despite some good business news. This included a record for August of $8,539,000 American jobholders, along with a decline of 590,000 unemployed, a 4 per cent increase in new U.S. construction this month over last August, and a statement by U.S. Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg that he anticipates no strike in the U.S. auto industry when contracts expire Thursday night.

But Wall Street was not so sure one of the Big Three auto makers would not be struck; so the betting was going both ways and the auto shares were mixed.

The aircrafts declined rather sharply on news the Berlin crisis appeared headed for negotiation. Some petroleums declined on reports of a less favorable profit arrangement between Indonesia and the three companies which operate in that country.

Of the 15 most active stocks, eight advanced and seven declined.

Thiokol was the volume leader, up 2⅝ to 47¼ on 50,400 shares. Brunswick was second, up 1 to 58⅞ on 44,600 shares. Certain-Teed was third, up 3 to 58 on 43,400 shares.

Active gainers included American Motors ½, American Machine & Foundry ½, San Diego Imperial ⅝ and Revlon 3⅛.

Lockheed was sold heavily and lost 1⅝. Boeing and United Aircraft each lost 1½.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON (AP)—Industrials scored a few gains on the London stock market Tuesday but trading was cautious and business generally failed to expand.

Operators said the market tone was improved by the possibility of early East-West talk on Berlin.

Government bonds met a good investment demand. War loan 3½ per cent was prominent as the result of continental buying.

Textiles were a dull exception among industrials which otherwise showed several gains on renewed demand. Gold and oil shares were quietly firm, tins went ahead but coppers were dull.

The Financial Times index was 308.4, up 1.2.

Negotiations on Germany

The international tensions over the status of Berlin and the future of Germany continue to hold the premier place in the news of the day. But although the irritation on Berlin's borders appears as acute as ever, there are signs that a catastrophic showdown may be avoided.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said on Monday there would be negotiations with Soviet Russia over the Berlin crisis. He remarked that Soviet Premier Khrushchev knew that the West would not be pushed out of Berlin and added that it was possible, but not likely, that the negotiations would take place before the opening of the United Nations General Assembly on September 19.

It appears from Mr. Rusk's statements that some sort of contact has been going on between the Western powers and Moscow all the time despite the hullabaloo of threats and recriminations. "It is not a matter of one side or the other initiating talks," said Mr. Rusk. "We have not been out of contact with the Soviet Union on this thing."

That is somewhat reassuring. Common sense should tell both sides that sooner or later the issues relating to Germany will have to be settled by negotiations between all concerned. But what the world at large hopes is that an armed conflict will not be precipitated first by untoward delay in such negotiations.

Since Mr. Khrushchev has sought to raise the question of the status of Berlin and Germany afresh, the Western powers have shown such a strong stand that the Soviet Premier must be convinced by now, as Mr. Rusk indicates, that they cannot be forced out of West Berlin. Perhaps this realization will incline him to enter into negotiations on a sensible basis. At least we must hope so. There is no doubt that Mr. Khrushchev once had hopes that by a process of bullying he would be able to get his own way in Germany. But now that these have obviously failed, he no longer enjoys a position of strength unless he is prepared to rely upon armed force. And we do not think Moscow is prepared to go so far as that under present circumstances despite the saber-rattling.

While saying this, we must admit, even if the Soviet Premier can be persuaded to discuss rationally with the Western powers significant points in connection with the German problem, that negotiations will certainly not be found easy. Although for the moment the maximum interest revolves around the situation in Berlin, this situation is merely part of the over-all German problem, and the German problem itself is closely bound up with the position of the East European Red satellites, frontier questions, and Communist ambitions both in Europe and elsewhere.

What seems to be required is that negotiations shall be held to deal with three main points: (1) the unification of Germany with the probable reestablishment of a unified Berlin as the capital of the whole German nation; (2) the permanent settlement of the frontiers of the reunified Germany, and (3) the question of conditions (if any) that should be imposed on Germany, particularly with regard to armaments.

The first point involves not only a willingness to have a reunified Germany in the center of Europe but there is also the question of the method to be adopted to secure this.

The ordinary person living in a free country would naturally conclude that this should be brought about in the usual democratic way through free elections throughout the territories inhabited by the German people. That is our understanding of the principle of self-determination. But this, of course, is not the Soviet Premier's idea. And why? Because it would almost certainly involve the disappearance of the Red regime which the Soviet Government has fostered in East Germany and continues to bolster up with Russian tanks and guns.

Whether there is any way of getting over this difficulty, it is difficult to say. Could the Ulbricht regime be permitted to function locally for at least a term of years if Eastern Germany were included in a unified state? Or in other words could East Germany be allowed a certain autonomy within the German nation?

Even if this were possible, it is hardly likely it would suit Moscow's book. As matters are at present the Ulbricht regime is a puppet of the Soviet Government and when Moscow tells it to act in a certain way it must obey. Moreover, the continued presence of Russian troops is the real safeguard of the East German Reds.

The question of the frontiers of a reunified Germany might be settled, we think, more or less on the present basis. Many Germans feel they have been unjustly deprived of parts of their national territory but the present division has at least the merit of having proved workable for two decades and nothing would be gained by upsetting Czechoslovakian and Polish borders.

Our own view on the third point is that an over-all settlement with Germany should be unconditional so that the German people should have every opportunity to develop on their own lines. There are, of course, some, even in West European countries, who fear a resuscitation of German militarism. But surely the best way to prevent any such thing is to remove any feeling Germans may have of inferior status among the nations of Europe?

As soon as we examine the German problem in anything approaching detail we see that most of the difficulties have been created through the Soviet policy of insisting on two Germanys, one of which is tied to over-all Communist conceptions and to Moscow's foreign policy. Consequently, any solution, even one most favorable to Moscow's ideas, would seem to involve a radical change in Soviet policy. Can this be forthcoming? It is up to Mr. Khrushchev to supply the answer.

Intellectuals Shun JCP

Attributed to Red Party's Undemocratic Attitude

By YUTAKA TAKAHASHI

The Japan Communist Party has successfully "boosted" its membership, but is losing the support of intellectuals.

This loss of support is largely attributable to the party's "undemocratic attitude" as exemplified by the conflicts within the party on the controversial theory on "Revolution in Japan." This was proven most conspicuously by the dismissal of seven party executive members immediately before the eighth party convention at the end of July.

Shojiro Kasuga, a central committee member and chairman of the party control committee who had been in the position of disciplining party members, was discharged as "subversive element" by other party executives on July 20, five days preceding the party convention. Dismissed with Kasuga were four other central committee members and two candidates for the central executive committee.

The seven had prepared to lodge a protest against the party platform which had been drafted and scheduled to be presented by the party main current faction at the convention.

Party Splits

In addition to the seven dismissed, party members or sympathizers who had expressed their disagreement to the "Two Enemy" theory on revolution in Japan held by Sanzo Nozaka, chairman of the party executive board, and Kenji Miyamoto, secretary general of the party, were either discharged, suspended from party membership or relieved of their party posts.

The Japan Communist Party last year started a campaign to double its membership from 40,000 to 80,000. At the same time it launched a drive to double subscribers to its organ "Akahata," successfully achieving both targets by the end of last July.

New party members and Akahata subscribers were mostly young labor union members. The party, however, failed to solicit the support of intellectuals and college students—two major sources of new JCP members in the past—in the membership-doubling campaign.

This is partly accounted for by the difference of opinion between the party and the maincurrent faction members of the Zengakuren (National Federation of Students Self-Government Associations) which took the initiative in the last May-June mass movement against revision of the Japan-U.S. Security Treaty. The student body had been under the absolute control of the party until then.

Conflicting Theories

There have been two conflicting theories among Japanese leftists on Socialistic revolution in Japan.

One of them is what may be called the "strategic theory" which holds that "American imperialism" and Japanese "monopolistic capital" are the "Two Enemies" to contend with, because Japan is still politically and militarily under American imperialists. This theory is advocated and developed by the JCP maincurrent faction headed by Miyamoto.

The other theory is the "One Enemy" theory held by the Japan Socialist Party, the largest opposition party, which views that the control over Japan by the American imperialists has lost strategic power now and Japanese monopolistic capital—Japanese imperialism—has recovered from the temporary destruction by the war. Those who support this theory maintain that the struggle against Japanese monopolistic capital is the sole target for postwar leftist activities.

Since there are a number of self-styled "theorists" among Japanese leftists, including both the JCP and JSP, they have their own "independent" theories which differ from each other in details. By and large, however, the above-mentioned two theories are the dominant and conflicting ones among Japanese leftist circles.

The party platform and policy report adopted unanimously by JCP maincurrenters alone at the July convention are as follows:

"It is mistaken to argue that the San Francisco Treaty has fundamentally given Japan independence or that this country is independent already," the statement said.

"Japan at present is governed fundamentally by American imperialism, while Japanese monopolistic capital is allied under a subordinative relationship with the United States.

"Japan is virtually a subordinate country, half occupied by American imperialism," the statement said.

JSP 1961 Program

Meanwhile, the Japan Socialist Party's 1961 working policies and its long-range political and economic programs decided at the party's 20th regular convention in March, have been formed based on the methods described in the structural reform theories of Palmiro Togliatti, secretary general of the Italian Communist Party.

The theory was supported by a "Roman appeal" issued by representatives of Communist parties of 17 free European nations who met in 1958.

The "followers" of the theory believe that the logic was also approved by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in his remarks concerning the "peaceful promotion of revolution" appearing in his report at the 20th congress of the Soviet Communist Party.

Peaceful Transition

The Japanese "structural reformists" assert that the theory was affirmed in the statement of 81 Communist parties and labor parties in a conference in Moscow last December.

They say that there are several ways of transition from capitalism to socialism, and that revolution is possible not only through violence but also by peaceful processes, especially in advanced industrial nations.

The Socialist Party, which often declares to the public that it will draw a line between the Communist Party, has also adopted a part, though not all, of the policy of structural reform in its campaign policies.

The party leaders believe that there is only one enemy of this country's socialism—Japan's monopolistic capital.

They thus conclude that by depriving the country's capital of its power step by step, they can convert Japan into a Socialist country through peaceful means.

'One Enemy' Theory

The leaders are not opposed to the assertion that Japan still is in a subordinate relationship with U.S. imperialism, but contend that the problem lies in how to evaluate this relationship itself.

Saburo Eda, secretary general of the party, says that his party has two objectives against which they must fight. One is the nation's monopolistic capital which is the basic enemy of workers since it directly sways Japan's national power while the other is foreign imperialism which restricts the nation's independence from outside by depending upon its military alliance with this country's monopolistic capital.

Eda says, nevertheless, that Japan fundamentally has already obtained independence and therefore his party's major and only enemy is the powerful monopolistic capital of this country.

Eda's "one enemy" theory is gradually gaining converts among the nation's sympathetic scholars, critics and members of the Communist Party.

JCP Loses Sympathizers

The Socialist Party has tried to invite Kasuga and other ousted leaders of the Communist Party into its membership, though the attempt has failed.

The Communist Party itself has naturally greeted Eda's opinion with harsh criticisms. The party used considerable space in its political report at the party convention late in July to criticize the Socialist Party's "one enemy" theory and its sympathizers in the Communist Party as well as scholars and critics.

The criticism later led to severe punishment measures of Communist sympathizers with the theory, including the ousting of some of its influential leaders.

One of the leaders of the Communist Party was then quoted as saying: "We will never feel impaired by seeing a small group of scholars and students defecting from us."

However, it is presumed that some of the Communist Party members, particularly the intellectuals will remain critical of the party executives' undemocratic policy of trying to kill opinions critical against their own, even at the stage of theoretical discussions.

Dr. Toshiyuki Toyoda

Japanese Representative to the Pugwash Conference

Dr. Toshiyuki Toyoda, 40-year-old Rikkyo University physicist, was invited to attend the Pugwash Conference scheduled from Sept. 9 in the United States. The conference, which was initiated by the famous British scientist, Bertrand Russell, will be attended by scientists from all parts of the world to discuss the role of scientists in international relations, the promotion of world peace and problems of disarmament.

Dr. Toyoda

Toyoda is the third Japanese scientist to attend the conference. His predecessors were Drs. Hideki Yukawa and Shinichiro Tomonaga.

On the agenda at the conference are many important problems including ways of preventing the unexpected breakout of war and of prohibiting the use of space for military purposes. Toyoda has pointed out, "This is the only place where we scientists can express our opinions about these problems."

He also said he is planning to take with him to the conference a draft plan of concrete measures to stop testing nuclear weapons.

His specialized field is theoretical physics and, together with Yukawa and Tomonaga, he is one of the top-rate physicists of fundamental particle in this country.

Toyoda studied physics at Tokyo University. After his graduation in 1943, he continued his study on the meson theory under Yukawa.

After World War II, he left Tokyo University where he was assistant professor and became professor at Rikkyo University.

In 1952, he was invited to the United States and studied for 11 months at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1957 he received an invitation from the European Federation of Atomic Nucleus Research institutes and studied at its central research laboratory in Switzerland. Through these activities, Toyoda has won international renown in the field of physics.

During his stay in the United States in September, he will also study the American developments in accelerating apparatus as a representative of the Japan Science Council.

Dare Me

By Max Lerner

The French-Tunisian encounter at the Bizerte base is unlikely to become a full-scale war between the two countries, yet it illustrates again with what suddenness a war can come, and how some seemingly minor initial incidents can be parlayed into mass killing.

The moral for the Berlin issue ought to be clear enough. If two relatively friendly nations, like France and Tunisia, can get themselves messed up as they have done at Bizerte, think what can happen between two hostile power-clusters like the Russian and American.

It is hard to grasp with any immediacy the prospects of a nuclear war coming out of the Berlin mess. One's impulse is to say that Khrushchev, sitting as he does today on top of a pyramid of power, will not dare to set off the explosion which will blast it to perdition. This makes sense logically. But the processes by which crises become explosions are not logical.

I have been troubled by a tendency among many commentators to say that nothing serious will happen in Berlin, that Khrushchev will withdraw at the showdown, and that somehow the world will worry through to a solution by words rather than arms. The reasoning is that nuclear war would be intolerable.

But, as I have written a number of times, there is a difference between the intolerable and the impossible. (I was happy to see the same distinction made in the recent SANE ad on Berlin). A number of times in history, as with the genocide committed by Hitler, the impossible has happened. The old assurance, "It can't happen here" has been replaced by "It can happen now."

I am not saying that it certainly will or that it probably will, but quite simply that it can.

I don't see how anyone can doubt the reflective coolness with which President Kennedy has handled himself in this crisis. He has done his homework, kept his head, taken a position only after careful discussion with the other members of the Western coalition and NATO. His style and stance have both been of a kind to win back the confidence that had been shaken for many by the Cuban disaster.

The trouble is that once you get the leaders of the two world power-masses confronting each other from a distance, each aware of the world watching, each determined not to show weakness, the result is bound to be a hardening rather than a relaxing of their positions.

The sad thing is that President Kennedy came into office resolved to carry on its foreign policy with imagination and flexibility. Yet he has found that on the core of the Berlin problem—the question of the access routes to West Berlin—it would be disastrous to back away.

He has given Khrushchev his only possible answer, and is now taking the inescapable steps of rethinking the short-range defenses of Berlin and West Europe as well as the long-range nuclear defenses. In getting ready to call out reserves, and in trying to put some order and drive into civilian defense, he has done the unavoidable.

The danger lies not in any mis-steps of his, but inherently in the nature of the great tragic dilemma of our time. The dilemma is that if you retreat on an issue like Berlin you invite the break-up of the coalition, perhaps of NATO, and the spread of fear from Paris to Bangkok and Tokyo: thus you lose the political world struggle. But if you strengthen your war readiness, you get caught in another arms race and battle of nerves that may end in a nuclear struggle.

To yield is to run the risk of having the whole Free World power cluster collapse, and expose the world to domination with or without war. To stand firm is inevitably to intensify the fear and the rigidity on both sides. The very fact that nuclear weapons are monstrous and intolerable makes it all the harder for either Kennedy or Khrushchev to lose their nerve.

It becomes a game of "Dare me," an insane confrontation whereby each contestant as he moves toward the other is fearful of being deflected from his course and of having "Chicken" hurled at him.

Is the answer, as some have suggested, a "disengagement" of forces from Germany? I strongly doubt whether most serious students of world politics believe today that disengagement (as George Kennan once proposed it) will work. Not only would it cripple the defense of Western Europe by stripping it of West German strength: even worse, it would leave a vacuum in the center of Europe, into which both sides would be more than ever tempted to move, with tensions worse than today's.

What makes everything harder is that the U.N. has been effectively crippled by the Russians, and that any plan requiring U.N. supervision in the immediate present will be turned down by Khrushchev, who hates Hammarskjold and is determined to throttle him with a troika.

The solution will have to come by agreement between the two power clusters themselves (perhaps by informal mediation) at another summit meeting at which a specific plan can be discussed which will both give the Russians their treaty with East Germany and give the West the access to Berlin on which it must insist. There has been talk of a "loophole clause" to be written into a Russian-East German treaty, which would in effect make it possible for the West to deal with East Germans while seeming to deal only with the Russians.

This would be, of course, a legal fiction. But the history of the law is full of legal fictions which solve human problems. There is no reason why a fiction should not be used for the greatest human problem of all.

Readers in Council

Wary of Germans

To the Editor:

"Crying Berliner in Tokyo"—Readers in Council in The Japan Times of August 21—in attempting to influence Western policy on Berlin and Germany seems to have forgotten that the West on the strength of 200 years experience has become somewhat wary of German attitudes toward Russia.

From the days of Frederick II of Prussia who in 1762 concluded a surprise alliance with Russia as soon as Elizabeth's successor Paul was willing to do so, and the Tauroggen agreement of 1812 by which the Prussian general Yorck with the approval of his government deserted his French allies and went over to the Russians, from Bismarck's efforts to maintain concord with Russia and the Rapallo Treaty of 1920 between the Weimar Republic and the likewise just established Soviet Union, to the Hitler-Stalin Pact, German inclination to align with Russia against the West whenever an opportunity offered itself is a recurrent feature of German foreign policy, notwithstanding the political coloring of the regime in either country.

It might, therefore, be useful to remind "Crying Berliner" that the West is not altogether ignorant of German history and might be well advised to heed its lesson.

Haiku Translations

To the Editor:

I am an admirer of the haiku translations which sometimes appear in your paper. The translation of poems is in itself a great art and due credit should be given to the translator.

Especially your translator must be commended for the efforts in preserving the original form, though of course, some may consider such efforts hindrance rather than help in conveying the true flavor of haiku.

Incidentally, the footnote to the piece which appeared today (Aug. 24) on cormorant fishing puzzled me a little. Was the poet "saddened by thinking of the fate of the fish caught by the cormorants?" It might have been so, and the readers of Basho's days might have appreciated the poem that way. But as a simple-minded modern reader and a faithful carrier of paychecks between my office and home, I would sympathize with cormorants rather than fish if I saw the cormorant fishing.

High Postal Rates

To the Editor:

Today I recieved two books in the mail. The Japanese book cost ¥100, the postage was ¥50 mailed in Tokyo. Having completed a world trip to 13 countries I was shocked to find this dramatic increase in Japan's most efficient, speedy mail service. Can the proper authorities answer in this column this question: Is this exorbitant increase in 2nd, 3rd and 4th class mail in agreement or opposition to the international postal ministries convention? In the same mail I got a $3.95 book from U.S.A. and the postage was eight cents, the weight was the same. In U.S.A. there is now a special "educational material" rate which brings the books, record, tape, etc. class down 50 per cent while Japan ups it 50 per cent. Do we thank "Zentei" for this?

Three Minutes a Day

By JAMES KELLER

Even Politeness Can Pall

A motorist learned recently that politeness to certain people can be as dangerous as rudeness.

The driver had stopped at a crossing in a European capital to let a pedestrian go by. The man on foot, however, waved him on. The motorist insisted that the other had the right of way. The courtesies continued for several minutes in the true continental fashion.

At length the irate walker whipped out a pistol and pointed it at the driver's throat.

"Drive on or I'll shoot you," he said.

And so he drove on. Shortly afterward the police picked up the pistol-packing pedestrian for a psychiatric check-up.

Although the good Lord expects us to show an unselfish regard for the rights and comfort of others, He doesn't want us to carry it to absurd lengths. When others, for good reasons or bad, don't want your help, it is wise to take the hint.

"Whosoever shall not receive you . . . going forth out of that house or city shake off the dust from your feet."

NEW DELHI—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told the Indian Parliament that India has "no intention of proposing a Japanese peace treaty which would in any way be controversial or which would run counter to provisions of the draft peace treaty."

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Acheson threatened to sever all U.S.-Czechoslovakian trade unless American newsman William N. Oatis is freed, but the Czech Ambassador declared that "neither economic pressure nor propaganda" will bring about the release.

FLUSHING MEADOW—Chinese Nationalist sources said their underground intelligence indicates the Communists are in a position to launch a concerted air and land offensive in Korea to coincide with the Japanese treaty conference in San Francisco.

Supplementary Budget

Both the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party and the Opposition are urged to exert their utmost efforts to normalize Diet procedures in the forthcoming extraordinary session scheduled to convene late in September. Japan is faced with difficult problems in both the domestic politics and foreign affairs. One of the problems in which the people are most keenly interested is the development of the Government's plan to double the national income. However, there are differences in views even among Government leaders as to the method of improving the nation's economic situation being faced with the deteriorating balance in international payments. There is no doubt that equipment investments should be curtailed and imports checked in order to improve the deteriorating foreign exchange situation. But no less important is the promotion of exports. In this respect, the supplementary budget to be deliberated on in the extraordinary Diet should be kept down to the minimum amount.—Asahi Shimbun

N-Test Conference

A three-power nuclear test ban conference was resumed in Geneva Monday. It is known to everybody that the conference has been stalled by the Soviet submission of the so-called "troika control system." Upon resumption of the conference, the United States and Britain made a new proposal including a demand for holding a conference of scientists. But the Soviets have rejected it by claiming that it will only help strengthen the spy network against them. Where does the nuclear test ban conference lead? This is a question hard to answer. For the distrust by the Soviets of the United States and vice versa is persistent enough and preventing the conference from going smoothly. The conference will strike a snag again if both sides are not in a position to budge an inch from their respective positions. This will only backfire into a more active armament race.—Yomiuri Shimbun

Belgrade Conference

A conference of leaders of various neutral nations is to be held in Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia, starting Sept. 1. Much significance is attached to the forthcoming conference since it is held at a time when the tension is mounting in Berlin. The purpose of the Belgrade conference is to find a way to avoid any world split and push the principle of peaceful coexistence positively. It is ardently hoped that various participating countries march forward toward realizing this purpose. Especially, the participation in it by Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru will be encouraging in brightening the prospects of the conference. It is natural that any conference of neutral nations without his attendance will be robbed of its significance. By his participation it is expected that the conference will prove "constructive."—Sankei Shimbun.
